Nixon worker denies claims from builder

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nixon reelection campaign official denied under oath today a Florida builder's testimony that he promised to solve the builder's legal problems in exchange for $100,000 cash contribution.

Benjamin Fernandez, who headed the Hispanic Finance Committee to Re-elect the President, rejected the charges made Wednesday by John J. Priestes of Coral Gables.

In an opening statement before the Senate Watergate committee, Fernandez said he was "appalled, shocked and disgusted with the tenor of his (Priestes') testimony."

Fernandez said a meeting he had with Priestes was arranged by the builder's associates, that "I never asked him for a dime," and that Priestes "was never promised any favors — directly or indirectly — in exchange for his donation" of $25,000 to Nixon's re-election effort.

According to the Fernandez version,

Priestes "volunteered to make a $25,000 donation which would be paid by one check."

Fernandez said there was never a request for Priestes to make his donation in cash and that, contrary to Priestes' testimony, the builder never asked former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans to pick up a telephone and call Housing Secretary George Romney about the builder's troubles with the Federal Housing Administration.

Priestes' testimony was heard Wednesday as the Watergate committee began its probe of campaign financing.

Fernandez called Priestes "a convicted liar." Priestes is scheduled to begin serving next week a one-year sentence for income tax and FHA violations.

Parts of Fernandez' testimony was in contrast to written statements and affidavits from others connected with the affair.

Five-point program accepted by Israelis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli state radio said today Israel has accepted a five-point plan worked out through the United States for a settlement with Egypt.

The radio quoted foreign correspondents in Tel Aviv, who in turn quoted government sources. Other well-placed government sources said, however, the report was "close to the truth."

The correspondents, not identified, were understood to have received the information in a briefing by a government source.

The radio said the plan was reached in talks between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and his aides in talks in Cairo and Tel Aviv.

Quoting foreign correspondents, the broadcast said the clauses were:

—A prisoner of war exchange "as soon as possible."

—A supply corridor for the encircled Egyptian 3rd Army that would be U.N.-supervised and run through Israeli lines. But it would include no weapons, and in no way be controlled by Egypt.

—Removal of the Egyptian blockade of the Bab-el-Mandeb Strait, Israel's vital outlet to the Indian Ocean.

—Negotiations between Israeli and Egyptian military commanders to arrange a more convenient cease-fire line for the two sides.

—Direct peace negotiations between Israel and Egypt, once the first four points are fulfilled.

Kissinger flew to Jordan and Saudi Arabia after spending a day in talks with President Anwar Sadat in Cairo. Kissinger's assistant in charge of Middle East affairs, Joseph J. Sisco, emerged from talks with Premier Golda Meir in Jerusalem and told newsmen: "I feel optimistic." He had gone to Israel unexpectedly from the Cairo sessions Wednesday, apparently bringing with him details of the Kissinger-Sadat meetings.

One Israeli source close to Mrs. Meir said while Sisco was meeting with the Israeli leaders: "The talks are not going badly for Israel."

Earlier, another authoritative Israeli source indicated that Israel had accepted a compromise proposal worked out between Kissinger and the Egyptians.

The source gave no details, but the plan appeared to focus on how to continue supplying food and water to the Egyptian 3rd Army, encircled by the Israelis in the Sinai Desert.

In the background of these reported movements toward peace, however, were charges Wednesday from Israel that Egypt was preparing a new attack along the Suez Canal. The Egyptians said the situation on the canal front was "tense and explosive" and that their army was in position to crush the Israelis.

Kissinger's peace-seeking tour continued with a quick visit to King Hussein of Jordan in Amman and then a trip to Saudi Arabia, the big oil producer in the Middle East, for conferences with King Faisal in Riyadh.

Sisco met in Israel not only with Mrs. Meir but also with Deputy Premier Yigal Allon and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan. An Israeli communique said the discussions took place "in a good and constructive atmosphere."

One highly placed Israeli source said Mrs. Meir was ready to accept a proposal for the delivery of supplies to the encircled Egyptian 3rd Army without the withdrawal of Israeli troops that Egypt has been demanding.

Under the proposal, worked out between Kissinger and Sadat, Egypt's demand that the Israelis free the 3rd Army by returning to positions held at the first U.N. cease-fire on Oct. 22 would be considered later, the Israeli informant said.

Mrs. Meir called a special Cabinet meeting apparently to consider the results of the Kissinger-Sadat meetings.

The Israeli newspaper Maariv, in a dispatch from Washington, gave this summary of a reported U.S.-Egyptian proposal:

The United Nations would control delivery of nonmilitary supplies to the 3rd Army on the southeast bank of the Suez Canal, but Israel would retain control of the access routes adjacent to the west bank; prisoners of war would be exchanged without delay and Egypt would lift its blockade at the mouth of the Red Sea; Egyptian and Israeli military commanders would meet to work out the cease-fire lines; and later preparations would begin for a peace conference.

One Israeli informant said the Maariv report was "close to the truth."

Emergency power sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked Congress to give him emergency power to ration gasoline and oil, cut working hours, reduce highway speed limits, put the nation on year-round Daylight Saving Time and suspend antipollution programs.

Congressional spokesmen predicted Nixon would get the powers quickly. The President said Wednesday he wants them by mid-December.

In a nationwide broadcast outlining his energy proposals, Nixon set 1980 as a target date for the United States to achieve energy self-sufficiency. He called for research and development programs rivaling the all-out efforts that developed the atomic bomb and put American astronauts on the moon.

The President also departed from his text to say he had "no intention of walking away" from his office despite some demands that he resign.

With petroleum heading for 10 to 17 per cent shortages because of Arab oil cutoffs,

Nixon warned that the nation faces "the most acute shortages of energy since World War II."

Consumers of home heating oil must get through the winter with only 85 per cent of the fuel they used last year, Nixon said.

Airline flights will be reduced 10 per cent through federal allocation of jet fuel, Nixon added.

He said a "contingency plan" for gasoline rationing was in preparation, but energy adviser John A. Love and an official fact sheet both said plans were being readied for the rationing of gasoline and heating oil.

Love said a decision on rationing must be made by December or January.

Gov. Robert B. Docking of Kansas, briefed with other governors by the President, said, "I wouldn't be surprised to see rationing after the first of the year."

Nixon said power plants now burning coal will be barred from switching to shortage-stricken oil or gas. Love said this regulation will be issued in about 10 days.

Nixon also asked for legislation allowing him to order power plants to switch from petroleum back to coal if they can do it.

Home heating oil, jet fuel, diesel fuel, kerosene and propane gas already are under mandatory federal allocation controlling their distribution at the wholesale level.

Love said mandatory allocation would be extended soon to all petroleum products under existing presidential authority.

Nixon's actions and requests for new authority were brought on during recent weeks by the Middle East war and the Arab nations' decision to cut off oil to friends of Israel.

Explaining the urgency of the administration's requests, Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, one of those briefed by the President, said: "I think the people of this country don't want to be blackmailed and don't want to be dependent on Arab oil."

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided House and Ways and Means Committee stamped its final approval today on a bill to hike Social Security benefits 11 per cent next year and to increase the payroll-tax wage base to pay for them.

Under the committee-approved plan, which is expected to be ready for House action next week, there would be a two-stage boost in Social Security benefits next year — 7 per cent coming in April's checks and another 4 per cent in July's checks.

President's powers placed under limits by Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has enacted over President Nixon's veto a bill limiting the power of the president to wage undeclared war.

The action Wednesday was the first successful override of a presidential veto in nine years.

Termed unconstitutional by President Nixon, the bill bars the president from committing U.S. troops to combat for more than 60 days without specific approval from Congress. Congress can terminate such an engagement sooner by majority vote in the House and Senate.

Backers of the war powers measure, first introduced three years ago, attributed the vote to overwhelming public support in the wake of the Vietnam war.

The House voted 284 to 135 to override, four more than the two-thirds needed.

The Senate completed the action by 75 to 18, or 13 more than required.

In the House, 86 Republicans voted to override and 103 were against. Among Democrats, 198 were for and 32 against overriding.

In the Senate, 25 Republicans voted against the President's position and 15 supported it. Fifty Democrats voted for overriding and three against.

After the vote, Nixon said the bill "seriously undermines this nation's ability to act decisively and convincingly in times of international crisis."

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said that to involve Congress, with its cumbersome procedures, in war-making decisions would cause "rejoicing in the streets of Moscow."

Tower expressed hope that the constitutionality of the bill will be challenged in court "at the earliest possible opportunity."

Disinterest mars '73 elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — For politicians seeking omens in the scattered elections of 1973, the real message may be in millions of ballots that were not cast.

It is a simple one: Disinterest.

With some exceptions the trend was a decline in voter participation in the odd-year state and municipal balloting.

Patterns are difficult to discern and risky to read in any odd-year elections, particularly when the voting is limited, widely scattered and generally local as was the case Tuesday.

Democrats emerged with the advantage, and some of their state and local leaders said Watergate was a significant factor in the showing. But the national chairmen of both parties, Democrat Robert Strauss and Republican George Bush, said they doubted the scandal had shaped the outcome.

Bush did say that Tuesday's voter verdicts might signal trouble for office holders in the state and congressional elections two years hence.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Watergate did damage the Republican party and "the very electoral process itself."

A sampling of voter turnouts in two states and some of the cities that held elections shows with few exceptions a decrease in voter turnouts compared with similar elections two or four years ago.

Whether that is a product of dissatisfaction produced by the scandals no one can say for sure. In some cases, dull campaigns without real contests were more likely to blame.

In Tuesday's elections, the most dramatic decline in voter participation came in New Jersey, where Democrat Brendan Byrne was elected governor. Fifty-seven per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots, compared with 74 per cent in the last gubernatorial race four years ago.

In Virginia, the other state that elected a governor, 50 per cent of the registered voters turned out Tuesday. That was down by about 2.3 per cent from the last gubernatorial race. Republican nominee Mills E. Godwin Jr., a former Democratic governor, was elected in Virginia.

In New York City's mayoral election about 1.69 million ballots were cast, compared with 2.39 million in the election four years ago. That decline appeared to stem largely from the virtual certainty that Democrat Abraham D. Beame would be elected, as he was, and from a lack of campaign issues.

In Detroit, voter turnout was 56 per cent in a closely contested mayoral race. "I think people are turned off on the whole political process," said George Edwards, the city clerk. "I think Watergate has had a significant effect on the attitudes that many Americans feel toward politics."

In Cleveland's mayoral election, voter turnout was the lowest in 40 years.

Quality of tapes is reported poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's personal secretary testified today that parts of the subpoenaed Watergate tapes are very poor in quality, and that it is humanly impossible to hear every word on them.

Rose Mary Woods, Nixon secretary for more than two decades, said that it took her nearly a month, working off and on, sometimes on weekends and far into the night, to type a rough transcript of seven conversations between President Nixon and Watergate figures.

Miss Woods said she first saw one of the controversial tapes Sept. 29, 1973, when, at Nixon's request, she began the task of transcribing them at the President's mountaintop retreat at Camp David, Md.

"I went up there to try to listen — I use that word advisedly — to take down as much as possible of the tapes that were subpoenaed," she testified at a hearing before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

According to previous testimony, it was Sept. 29 that the President expressed awareness that recordings of two of the total of nine subpoenaed conversations couldn't be found.

Sirica called the hearing to air the circumstances surrounding a White House claim that the two tapes never existed.

Miss Woods said that transcribing the tapes had been a "very difficult job," and that despite working until 3 a.m. Sunday morning, and again all day Sunday after arising at 6 a.m., she was unable to complete a transcript of even one conversation.

"The quality is very bad on some," she said, "depending on the room. There are lots of funny things in them."

Among these oddities, she said, "if the President puts his feet on the desk, it sounds like a bomb. Boom."

She said a similar sound is created on the tape recordings if someone sets a coffee cup on a table.

Miss Woods said she returned to Washington with the President on Sunday, Sept. 30 and continued working on the tapes for almost a month. Once she said, on Oct. 4, she sequestered herself at Key Biscayne, Fla., and worked while Secret Service agents guarded the tapes, which were in a safe, on a 24-hour-a-day basis.

Miss Woods said she made a single typewritten copy of her transcriptions with no carbons. Her typewriter ribbons were burned to prevent anyone from reading words which might be left on them, she said.

Her final product "was given directly, personally by me to the President," Miss Woods testified.

She said she finished her transcribing work on Oct. 23 or 24.

St. Louis prepares for visit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Impressed by the broad spectrum of the region's recent 100-member trade mission to Japan, Japanese businessmen plan to visit the St. Louis area next month, Donald E. Lasater, chairman of the trade mission group said Wednesday.

"As a result of contacts we made during the mission, we know there are 12 to 15 companies that have expressed interest in developing warehouse, distributing and manufacturing facilities in the United States," Lasater said at a press conference, noting that the Japanese firms had not contemplated a St. Louis visit prior to the two-week trade mission.

St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos noted that the mission was the largest of 35 to visit Japan this year, and he pointed to the fact that its members included business, labor and civic officials.

"It impressed upon them the fact that we were serious and enthusiastic in our desire to create a mutually beneficial trade agreement with them," Roos commented.

Lasater said the visiting businessmen will be shown selected sites in the metropolitan area with the hope of convincing them to invest in St. Louis.

Although he was enthusiastic about the mission's accomplishments, Lasater admitted that it may be sometime before substantial proof of success is apparent.

"What we can point to immediately is between 57 million and 58 million in sales the mission members made while in Japan," he said, and Mayor John H. Poelker of St. Louis added that "a good deal of follow-up work" was planned.

Harry T. Morely Jr. of the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association said a free trade zone was planned for the area within the next six months as part of the effort to entice foreign investors. The free trade zone permits duty concessions, encouraging foreign business ventures.

Three members of one family killed in crash

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — A head-on collision on a two-lane county road has killed three members of a Bragg City family and injured another.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said a pickup truck collided with a car carrying Allan Gattis, 22; his wife, Teresa, 20, and two sons, Jonathan, 2, and David, 1, on Route 2, about two miles east of Kennett Wednesday.

David was the only survivor in the car, and he was taken to a Kennett hospital for treatment of abrasions and contusions.

Billy Ray Inman, 19, of Kennett, the pickup truck driver, was treated at the hospital for lacerations and bruises.

Poem is part of a eulogy

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Dr. John Neihardt's fearless reflections on death were repeated at his funeral services here Wednesday night.

Nebraska's 92-year-old poet laureate—also a literary critic, lecturer and authority on American Indians—died last Saturday at the home here of one of his daughters, Mrs. Hil-da Petri.

Mrs. Alice Tompson, another of his daughters living here, selected for some 300 friends and admirers at the funeral service a poem written by Neihardt when he was 19, "Let Me Live Out My Days."

The second stanza reads: "Let me go quickly like a candlelight

Snuffed out just at the heyday of its glow!

Give me high noon—and let it then be night!

Thus would I go."

The eulogy was delivered by Dr. Elmer Ellis, former University of Missouri president, now retired. Neihardt, said Dr. Ellis, "is one of the great writers of the generation just passed... The university is in his debt. His personal library has been donated to us and it is a collection such as this that makes a university library great."

Neihardt was poet in residence and lecturer in English at MU from 1949 to 1965.

Dr. Monk Bryan, pastor of Missouri United Methodist Church here, suggested there could be no more appropriate theme for the service than what Neihardt said last January about death to an interviewer on his 92nd birthday:

"There is nothing morbid about my attitude toward death. Rumors of the flesh and whisperings of the spirit have alerted me to the fact that I am getting somewhat nearer to the great change and I do not regret the fact. I had a warm feeling for this world, but I believe in a continuing life and I am sure that death will be an astonishing adventure, not to be feared at all."

The body is to be cremated today in St. Louis.

State agency gets early emergency requests

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The newly formed Missouri Fuel Allocation Board, which will determine distribution of certain fuels this winter, reported Wednesday that it has already received 300 emergency requests.

The announcement came prior to President Richard M. Nixon's request in a nationally broadcast speech that Congress give him special powers to conserve fuel this winter.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, pointing to his actions aimed at reducing the state's energy consumption, said he was "delighted to see the President take such positive and constructive steps" to combat the energy problem.

Earlier, Bond slapped a reduced speed limit on state cars and ordered thermostats lowered in state office buildings in efforts aimed at conserving fuel.

"The energy crisis is real," the governor said, "but there is nothing the state can do to solve it. We can only help alleviate it."

James F. Mauze, chairman of the Fuel Allocation Board, said "some very basic rules" will be issued later this month to insure the fair distribution of certain fuels.

Top priority, he said, will be given to emergency residential uses followed by institutions like hospitals and nursing homes, emergency governmental services and finally agricultural services.

"Whatever is left, we will spread out equally," Mauze said, adding that no additional fuel will be allocated to new or expanded businesses except through the Regional Oil and Gas Office in Kansas City.

Bond, predicting the possibility of "difficult, uncomfortable and inconvenient conditions," limited state cars to 60 miles an hour, a measure he said would cut fuel consumption by 11 per cent.

The governor also ordered thermostats in state buildings turned down to 68 degrees and said weatherstripping and heating systems would be checked.

In the St. Louis area, the McDonnell Douglas Corp. has already placed a 50-m.p.h. speed limit on its vehicles and ordered temperatures at its St. Louis County complex lowered to 68 degrees.

The St. Charles County Sheriff's Department became one of the first police agencies to place a speed limit on its cars Wednesday.

Sheriff Robert A. Koester ordered deputies to cut speeds to a maximum of 50 miles an hour while on routine patrol, and he requested the deputies to confine patrol duties to county roads only, leaving the interstate highway system to the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Firm enters plea in case over copyright

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A Missouri firm pleaded no defense to a charge of copyright infringement in U.S. District Court in Des Moines Wednesday.

P.M. Place Stores Co., Inc., of Bethany, Mo., was fined $1,800 on a total of 18 counts.

A 44-count indictment accused the firm of selling copied pop, rock and country music tapes in its stores in 12 Iowa towns. Disposition of the remaining 26 counts wasn't immediately determined.

U.S. Atty. Allen Donelson said the plea covered tapes sold in Boone, Fairfield, Des Moines, Bloomfield, Fort Madison, Jefferson, Greenfield, Corning and Creston counties.

Cartoonist will have show on TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Hart, as a goodly number of kids, college students and general citizens know, draws the "B.C." comic strip, which is sort of a hipsters' "Flintstones."

Come Nov. 19, he'll have his first full-length cartoon feature on television, a half-hour effort on NBC called "B.C.: The First Thanksgiving."

Most of it concerns a turkey who is uneasy at the idea of being dined on. Hart approaches interviews about the show approximately the same way the turkey contemplates the ax.

"I'm trying to get into the Guinness Book of Records as the worst interview of all time," he unhappily explained. Then he started laughing. "So you might as well prepare yourself."

Hart, a 41-year-old native of Endicott, N.Y., isn't a hostile witness. It's just that, well, a guy who draws ants that talk and anteaters that go "Zot!" as they dine is apt to be a bit strange upstairs.

In his defense, we'd point out that he's a great fan of the old "Roadrunner" cartoons, breaks up at the mention of Dudley Do-Right of the Royal Mounted Police and considers jazz trumpeter Jack Sheldon, a regular on the Merv Griffin show, one of the most naturally funny men of all time.

Hart, in short, is a normal cartoonist. His "B.C." strip has been nationally syndicated for nearly 13 years, but he's been a professional cartoonist since he was 19.

"I guess originally it was the only thing that I knew how to do," he said. "I started out just working nights and studying other people's drawings, then trying some of my own."

He continued drawing, even during a Korean war stint with the Air Force, but despite some success in magazines he didn't really hit until he happened to see Charles Schulz' "Peanuts" strip.

"I'm of the old school. I like the full animation, like in the old days with the Warner Brothers stuff."

Price protection sought for liquor wholesalers

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri House subcommittee, studying possible changes in the state's liquor laws, was told Wednesday wholesalers need to be protected against price discrimination and alleged improper bidding practices by liquor producers.

The two-day hearing continues today at the capitol. The chairman, Rep. John Blassie, D-St. Louis, said he hopes retailers and representatives of employees in the liquor industry, would testify.

William Wright, a former state liquor control supervisor who is now general counsel of the Missouri Wine and Spirits Association, Inc., said Wednesday that major distillers charge Missouri wholesalers 52 to 55 more per case on some liquors than wholesalers are charged in Kansas.

He said a price "affirmation" law, similar to ones passed by other states, could force distillers to keep prices uniform. But he said such a law should not apply to wholesalers' prices to retailers because of the wide variance in wholesale prices in the nation.

Wright said distillers have tight control over contracts with wholesalers and favoritism or canceling of contracts often results.

Merlin Burke, president of the association, said for contracts to be terminated the suppliers "must show cause, and now they don't have to do that."

Paul E. Sapp, president of Midstate Distributing Co. in Columbia, agreed with Wright and Burke, saying "You sign the contracts they write."

Sapp said the contracts "give the supplier control over your operation, which is exactly what we don't want."

The three agreed with earlier testimony by Michael Garrett, the present liquor control supervisor, that sweeping changes are not needed in the state's liquor laws.

Garrett told the subcommittee he needs 18 of his agents to have arrest power, instead of just six, who now have such power.

Garrett said he favored dropping the requirement that certain retail liquor licensees post a surety bond. He said this does not benefit the state and appears to be unfair to some 4,000 license holders who still must furnish the bond.

Blassie said he wondered how Garrett's agents could enforce "vague" regulations against lewd behavior, gambling devices and immoral persons being on the premises.

Garrett agreed the terms were hard to define and that perhaps some changes are needed to clarify them.

headway in regard to the Syrian front where Israeli forces hold a corridor running from the old cease-fire line along the Golan Heights to a point about 20 miles from Damascus, Syria's capital.

Syria charged today that one of its anti-aircraft missile batteries shot down an Israeli reconnaissance plane that tried to fly over Syria.

There were indications that Sisco's mission was chiefly concerned with arrangements to prevent a resumption of fighting along the canal, rather than peace negotiations.

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said Kissing and his aides in their talks Wednesday with the Egyptians "focused a good deal of attention on the immediate situation on the ground.... The form of eventual negotiations has not been settled." And when asked if the Americans were optimistic that the tension along the Suez front would be reduced, he replied, "We will perhaps know better after we have conversations with Israel."

McCloskey gave no indication of what was being proposed, but he denied that Sisco had been sent to pressure the Israelis.

Other U.S. officials said the U.S. position was now more acceptable to the Israelis than it was when Mrs. Meir visited Washington last week.

the interruptible clause and in return receive natural gas at a lower rate.

The difficulty in both Stover and parts of the Versailles school system stems from the fact that furnaces there do not have the capability of burning both natural gas and oil. The schools in California and Eldon, according to Missouri Utilities, have that potential and therefore do not face the same problem.

When asked how long the problem might exist, Timms had no definite answer. He indicated, however, that if temperatures do not go up, it could be as long as a month.

U.S., Europeans fight to save their alliance

BRUSSELS (AP) — The United States and its main European allies, at odds over the Middle East, are struggling to preserve the North Atlantic alliance to serve its basic purpose — joint defense against any Soviet threat.

Both U.S. and European diplomats are keen to keep the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alive. They point with satisfaction to its success in keeping them together at current conferences with the Soviet bloc on security, cooperation and reduction of forces.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is sending a deputy to receive his Nobel Peace Prize on Dec. 10 while he attends his first meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels. A major point will be a new statement on relations among the allies, a less pretentious version of the New Atlantic Charter Kissinger proposed last April.

The North Atlantic Council, made up of the allies' permanent representatives at NATO headquarters, has been meeting regularly to put the statement together. One diplomat at NATO headquarters, beset by recriminations among the allies on Middle East policy, suggested, "Events of the last few weeks certainly indicate that redefining the alliance might be a good idea."

The October Arab-Israeli war has underlined one thing: It is hard to get the alliance to operate beyond its original aim of defense against the Soviets and impossible to do so on short notice in a situation where the allies see their interests differently.

Two brothers are victims of accident

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WHEATLAND — Two brothers, residents of this small community just north of Pomme de Terre Reservoir, were killed instantly in a one-car crash within the city limits Tuesday night, according to the State Highway Patrol.

Donald Hibdon, Jr., 25, and Vernon Dale Hibdon, 22, the driver, were both killed when a 1965 Pontiac driven north on Highway 83 in Wheatland went out of control at 9:55 p.m. Tuesday.

According to the patrol, the Hibdon car approached another northbound car from the rear at a high rate of speed, attempted to pass, ran off the left side of the road, crossed back onto the roadway and overturned. The car then ran off the right side of the highway, sheared a tree and utility pole, overturned again and came to rest on its top on the road.

Donald Hibdon was born in Warsaw, April 8, 1948, the son of Earnest and Ruby Knox Hibdon.

He is survived by his wife, Nancy Jane Hibdon, Freeman; and one daughter, Rhonda Kay Hibdon, Freeman.

Vernon Dale Hibdon was born in Warsaw, May 4, 1951. He is survived by his wife, Linda and daughter, Michelle, of the home here.

Also surviving are their parents, Ruby Hibdon, Concord, Calif.; and Earnest Hibdon, Wheatland; four brothers and five sisters.

Funeral services for both men will be held at 3:38 p.m. Friday at the Reser Funeral Chapel, Warsaw.

Burial will be in Mossey Cemetery near Edwards.

Robbery report is made by a Sedalia man

Gregory Padgett, owner of Lec-Tro-Mek Service Co., 606 South Ohio, reported to police Wednesday that an eight-track tape player valued at $139.95 was stolen from the store either Saturday or Monday.

Ralph Gustavus Blackburn, 122 South Ohio, Apt. D., reported to police Wednesday that two men robbed him of $98 in cash while he was standing in the driveway of Doty's Moving and Storage Co., 208 East St. Louis, at 2:51 p.m. Wednesday. Blackburn told police that one of the men jumped him while the other grabbed his wallet. He told police that the two men ran behind Doty's to make their escape.

In other police news, the home of Harold Hammond, 103 Southwest Blvd. Ct., was reported broken into between 6:45 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Hammond told police that his wife and daughter had left the house to go out for supper and when they returned they found that the home had been entered and ransacked.

Taken in the break-in were five silver dollars, $10 in change, two gold and diamond wedding rings and a pearl ring.

Damage from fire is set at $1,000

An early-morning fire of undetermined origin caused an estimated $1,000 damage to a garage and its contents Thursday.

James Dick, 115 South Gentry, owner of the garage, said that the 2 a.m. fire caused damage to a furnace, air conditioner, refrigerator and some old furniture that was being stored in the building, which is located at 404 East Sixth.

The report on the fire listed damage at $500 to the structure and the rest to the contents.

The European allies, especially France and Britain, argued that the United States does not depend on the Arabs for its oil but they do. So the United States could afford to support Israel, but they couldn't.

That is why only Portugal — and, in the beginning, West Germany — gave the United States any help in sending arms to Israel. Then the West Germans also refused after the United States embarrassed them by bringing an Israeli ship into Bremerhaven to load arms.

This lack of cooperation moved Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger to say that he wanted to reconsider the U.S. military commitment to West Germany. To West Germans that sounded like a threat to withdraw troops, which would be bound to raise a political storm for Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Lately there has been a determined effort to paper over the cracks. Schlesinger explained that he wanted to clarify with West Germany the right of access to stocks of U.S. weapons there.

But the Europeans showed no sign of backing the United States in its support of Israel. And also on Tuesday the nine countries of the European Common Market — eight of them members of NATO — issued a joint statement calling on Israel to get out of conquered territory and speaking of the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinian Arabs.

Kansas City residents get jail sentences

Two Kansas Citians were each sentenced to one year in the county jail and ordered to pay court costs after they were found guilty Thursday morning in Pettis County Magistrate Court on misdemeanor stealing charges.

Sentenced were Anita Olga Tillman, 23, and James Michael Bell, 24. The two were accused of stealing clothing on Oct. 13 from the Montgomery Ward Co., 400 South Osage.

Both were originally charged with felonies but Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said Thursday he reduced the charges because it was discovered that the value of the clothing was less than $50. Stealing less than $50 is a misdemeanor.

After sentencing, Magistrate Court Judge Frank Armstrong told the two: "Let your Kansas City friends know this is how we handle shoplifters in this county."

A year in the county jail is the maximum jail sentence that can be imposed for a misdemeanor.

Settlement made in damage suit outside court

A $51,000 damage suit against Rich Hill Rendering Co., and Jack Graham, an employe of Rich Hill, was dismissed in Pettis County Circuit Court Wednesday after an out-of-court settlement.

The amount of the out-of-court settlement could not be learned Wednesday.

The suit was filed in Circuit Court Nov. 18, 1968, after an accident Aug. 20, 1968, between a truck driven by one of the plaintiffs, Karlen G. Mathes, which collided with a truck driven by Graham on Highway 65 south of Sedalia.

Mathes alleged in the suit that Graham had parked the truck, owned by Rich Hill Rendering Co., on the roadway in a negligent manner. He asked for $40,000 in personal damages. Leonard, owner of the truck driven by Mathes, asked for $11,250 in property damages to the truck.

Graham later filed a counter-claim against Mathes, alleging negligence on Mathes' part and asking for $25,000 in damages. The counter-claim is not affected by the dismissal of the original suit, it was learned.

$25,000 damage suit before jury

A 12-person Pettis County Circuit Court jury began hearing testimony Thursday morning in a $25,000 damage suit.

The plaintiffs, Dick M. and Lorene Deupree, are seeking the money in connection with a three-car accident June 5, 1970. The defendant in the case is Florence L. Bohon. Deupree is seeking $20,000 and his wife is asking $5,000.

Attorneys Adam Fischer and James Durley are representing the Deuprees. Ken Romines is the attorney for Mrs. Bohon.

Members of the jury are: Felix Sullivan, Harry A. Trotter, Larry D. Craig, Mrs. Smith Higgins, Betty Hickam, Clyde Bullock, Russell King, Ray Haley, James Anderson, Mrs. B. C. Claycomb, Chester Anderson and Glen Miesner.

County court goes along with Nixon

Pettis County Presiding Judge Harry Walch Thursday turned the thermostats at the courthouse down to 68 degrees.

"We're living up to the President's request asking that thermostats be set at 68 degrees," Walch said.

He said he also has requested county employes to turn their thermostats down at their homes and to conserve gas when driving.

"We asked that they all follow the President's orders," he said.

No resignation ahead, Nixon tells the nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, responding to mounting calls for his resignation, vows he has "no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do."

Nixon voiced his determination to hold onto his office in "a personal note" at the end of a television-radio address to the nation Wednesday night on energy problems. Speaking without notes, he said:

"... I would like to give my answer to those who have suggested that I resign.

"I have no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do. As long as I am physically able, I am going to continue to work 16 to 18 hours a day for the cause of a real peace abroad, and for the cause of prosperity without inflation and war at home."

While talk of possible resignation or impeachment has mounted sharply in recent days, Nixon seemed to place no great urgency on finding a way out of his current predicament, speaking of it as a long-range operation.

"I am confident that in the months ahead," he said, "the American people will come to realize that I have not violated the trust that they placed in me when they elected me as President of the United States in the past, and I pledge to you tonight that I shall always do everything that I can to be worthy of that trust in the future."

Since the leadership crisis exploded, presidential aides also have talked in terms of weeks and months, rather than days, in discussing Nixon's plans to rebut his critics.

Speaking of Watergate and related matters, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said earlier Wednesday: "We are giving consideration to a number of steps that the President will be taking here in the coming weeks and months to clarify this matter and to put it into perspective."

The White House announced Wednesday the hiring of an additional legal consultant, Miami attorney Samuel Powers Jr., to help handle Watergate-related questions. Ziegler said there will be a further expansion of Nixon's legal team because "you cannot deal with over a hundred lawyers with five." The spokesman said the objective is to meet promptly and "in an orderly and effective way" the requirements of various investigative units including the Watergate special prosecutor's office, federal grand juries and the Senate Watergate committee.

Ziegler virtually ruled out, however, any appearance — even an informal one — by Nixon before members of the Senate Watergate committee. Some Republican figures, including Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, had strongly urged such a course.

Knob Noster man is hurt in auto crash

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Lee M. Youngblood, 19, Knob Noster, was taken to Whiteman AFB Hospital with a possible concussion following a one-car accident on Highway 30 just west of Route 23 shortly before 2 a.m. Thursday.

According to the Highway Patrol, Youngblood was westbound on Highway 30 in a 1970 Plymouth when he apparently lost control, drove across the median into the eastbound lane and then back into the westbound lane where the vehicle overturned in a ditch.

In another accident a Stover man, Walter Martin, 44, escaped injury Wednesday night when he lost control of the truck he was driving and overturned on Route C about six miles south of Sedalia.

According to the Highway Patrol, Martin was southbound on Route C about 11 p.m. when he lost control on a curve, slid sideways, traveled 93 feet and overturned.

The vehicle, a 1972 Dotson pickup, was extensively damaged.

Arrest a man suspected in slayings

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A man believed to be one of two fugitives sought for questioning in the execution-style slaying of nine persons was apprehended in a downtown hotel today.

Police continued the search for a second man.

The young man apprehended was taken by a dozen policemen through the lobby of the hotel, four blocks from the state Capitol, and hustled into a patrol car.

Officers declined comment on whether the man was identified and if he was one of the two men sought in the slayings in a luxury home in Victor, Calif., 35 miles south of Sacramento.

The man was taken into custody after shotgun-armed police surrounded the Clunie Hotel and began a room-to-room search of the third floor.

The search for the two men, who are also wanted on an Arizona murder warrant, centered in downtown Sacramento a short time earlier.

Police said earlier the nine persons slain in the luxury ranch home were executed in a "professional style."

The victims, including two children, were all shot in the head and left in a bedroom and closet of a new $60,000 home surrounded by vineyards in the San Joaquin Valley 80 miles east of San Francisco. The seven adults had been bound and gagged.

San Joaquin County Sheriff Michael N. Canlis said the bodies of the adult victims were found Wednesday in a semicircle in a blood-spattered closet. He said powder burns indicate the killer or killers pressed high-powered weapons against the heads of some of the victims and pulled the trigger. The bodies of the two children were found in a bedroom.

San Joaquin County Sheriff's Lt. Donald Morrow said two men who are sought on a two-count murder warrant by Phoenix, Ariz., authorities are also wanted for questioning in the Victor case.

Morrow said the crimes are similar, and that one of the two men, Willie Luther Steelman, 28, lived in Lodi, about four miles from where the nine bodies were discovered in the home of the Walter Parkin family.

However, Morrow said, "We have no evidence at this time to show that they have been here." The other man sought on the Arizona warrant is Douglas Gretzler, 22, of New York City.

The victims were identified as Parkin, 33, who owned a food market two miles away; his wife, Joanne, 31; their children, Lisa, 11, and Bobby, 9; Richard A. Earl, a neighbor and accountant; Earl's wife, Wanda; their son, Ricky, 15; their daughter, Debbie, 18; and Mark Lang, 20, who was identified as Debbie's boyfriend.

Canlis said an undetermined amount of cash is missing from a floor safe in Parkin's market, and that there may be a connection between the slayings and the theft. He said there is no evidence that force was used to open the market safe.

Carol Jenkins, 18, a roomer in the Parkin home, discovered the slayings. Canlis said she told deputies that she came home after a date at about 3 a.m. Wednesday and went directly to bed, suspecting nothing.

But he said she was awakened at 6 a.m. by two friends of Lang, who were knocking on the door because he had not come home the night before and his car was parked in front of the Parkin house.

Then she discovered the bodies of the two children on a bed in the master bedroom, and called authorities. Canlis said investigators found the other bodies.

Oklahoma manhunts not very productive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a fruitless night for searchers in two manhunts in eastern Oklahoma.

Authorities have been looking for three Kansas Reformatory escapees who abducted a woman but released her unharmed and for two escapees from Eastern State Hospital at Vinita, Okla.

The three inmates from the Kansas State Industrial Reformatory, a medium-security correctional facility, were charged with kidnapping Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Tulsa.

They are George Gene Van Beber, 34; Carl Lee Bergeron, 21, and his brother, Willie James Bergeron, 20.

The three fled the reformatory Monday and later abducted Mrs. Margaret Kincaid from her rural Kansas home. She was released early Tuesday north of Pawhuska, Okla.

A Highway Patrol plane and at least 30 officers from several agencies were involved in the search for the Kansas escapees.

Authorities were searching also for Antonio LeRoy of Ponca City and Michael Pennington, 21. They overpowered an Eastern State Hospital worker Monday and escaped.

LeRoy was under a life sentence for the slaying of a Ponca City youth and Pennington is charged with robbery in Washington County.

Unhaunted hero

Monte Markham, the new Perry Mason, is not a man to be haunted by his predecessor. Not bothered himself by thoughts of being compared to Raymond Burr, of the new series he says he thinks it's at least as good as the old one, if not better. "Television has grown in the last 10 years." To take on his role, Markham had to leave the Broadway musical "Irene," and tie himself down for nine months — but "I do Mason so that I can do other things." (AP)

New 'Perry Mason' is the same as the old one

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Monte Markham is not a man to be haunted by ghosts.

At the beginning of the season he took on an especially tough task — recreating a role closely identified with another actor.

Raymond Burr was Perry Mason for nine years on CBS. Although he has gone on to become Chief Robert Ironside on NBC's "Ironside," the old shows are everywhere in reruns.

Markham plays the crime-solving lawyer, created by the late Erle Stanley Gardner, in "The New Perry Mason" on CBS Sunday nights.

He contends he is not bothered by the comparison, nor is he cowed by the necessity to overcome it.

"It's more than anything else to do — forgetting Raymond Burr and the success of the other show — just to do a character identified that strongly worldwide in books," Markham said.

"Like James Bond, Sean Connery was identified as James Bond but Roger Moore came in and did it successfully. Once having done it you overcome it."

Recreating famous characters is nothing new. Charlie Chan has been portrayed by at least five actors. Richard Chamberlain in the "Dr. Kildare" TV series made people forget that Lew Ayres played the young intern in the movie series. It's difficult to think of Dracula without thinking of Bela Lugosi, yet Jack Palance is superior in the new version for TV.

"The new Perry Mason" is structured the same as the old. There is the crime, invariably murder. Mason is called in to defend the accused, invariably innocent. It's Mason, Della Street and private eye Paul Drake vs. Dist. Atty. Hamilton Burger and Police Lt. Arthur Tragg. As co-producer Ernie Frankel puts it, Mason may lose cases Monday through Friday, but on Sunday nights he wins them all.

Markham said, "You have to be at least as good as the old show if not better. And I think we are. Television has grown in the last 10 years."

"You can see the reruns. The shows worked. But a lot of the old stuff was horribly melodramatic. It was the only game in town at that time. Some of the old Mason shows were just atrocious in the light of this day."

The original Mason show left the network in 1966, which was almost an age of innocence compared to what followed.

"We've just come through a period of violent, motiveless crime," Markham said. "Police officers were murdered on the streets. Our leaders were assassinated."

"Mason deals with motive crime. That's old style. It's hard to find a man who kills his wife because she's running around with another man."

"There's another thing," he said. "Attorneys are in ill repute. Because of all the lawyers involved in Watergate. And such things as immunity from prosecution have taken on an entirely new meaning now since Watergate. Writers can't write as simply as they used to. It's all changed. They can do things they never could before. It's richer now."

The possibilities of offering a third diploma program at Smith-Cotton High School — or reverting to a one-degree program — are among the proposals now under study by a special citizens' advisory committee appointed recently by Smith-Cotton Principal Earl Finley.

The 22-member committee was organized, Finley indicated, to evaluate the structure, direction and dimension of the school's graduation requirements and curriculum composition in light of State Department of Education changes which take effect next June. The group's recommendations are subject to final approval and possible revision by the school board.

Under the revised rulings, Finley explained, the state will require students to complete at least 20 units of study in order to graduate, an increase of three over the present minimum requirements. One other change, Finley noted, is that two-semester physical education and music classes, which formerly were counted as half-units, will now be figured as full units.

Conversely, Finley continued, the number of required courses has decreased from 11 to nine. Students, he explained, are currently compelled by the state to take three units each of social studies and English, and one unit each of math, science, practical arts, fine arts and physical education.

Beginning next year, he said, students will be required to take one unit each of communications skills, social studies, math, science, practical arts, fine arts and physical education. In addition, the students must select two additional courses from the areas of math, science, social studies and communications skills.

On paper, the state changes simply tack on three more full unit courses and remove two electives. To students, however, the revised requirements pave the way for more flexibility in choosing classes.

Which, Finley said, is exactly what the state intended.

"It's an increasing trend all across the country," he said. "More and more states are altering their requirements to grant the student a higher degree of individualized study. The idea is to offer the students the greatest number of opportunities for education specifically aimed toward his interests."

However, Finley noted, individual school districts are not obliged to adopt the state's minimum requirements schedule down to the last unit.

Smith-Cotton students, he said, are not required to take any more total units than the state-set minimum. But they must have an additional year of English beyond that called for by the state.

"Conceivably, students could have more freedom than ever before to select their classes," Finley said. "By this, I don't mean that we won't continue helping them. Indeed, they may even need it more than ever. What is intended is that students will have a wider variety of courses to choose from. I believe this puts more responsibility on the guidance counselor than ever before."

Finley said the additional three-unit requirement will not radically affect the current school teaching schedule. However, he indicated, certain classes may be reviewed and possibly divided from year-long units into two one-semester courses.

For example, he said, a year-long European history course could be divided into two separate semester studies of medieval European history and modern European history, similarly, Finley said, a current year-long English course could be broken down into semester courses in literature, composition of communication.

Because semester courses would only count half-credit, the student will be required to take two semesters of study to get the complete unit credit in the general field. "It's just another means of diversification," Finley said.

In evaluating the school's current diploma program, the committee will be taking a close look at a program that developed following the shock of Sputnik in the late 1950's.

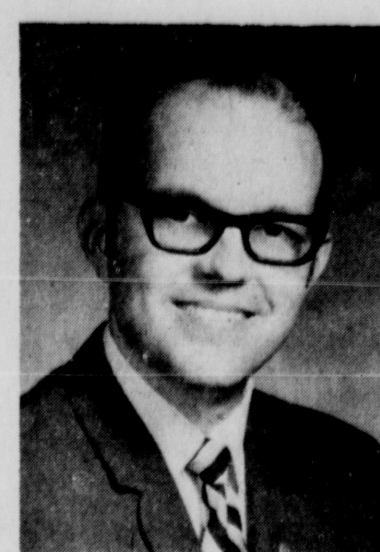

This resulted in the establishment of a "scholastic" diploma awarded to students who complete a degree program placing added emphasis on science and mathematics.

Graduating seniors not pursuing this program are "awarded" general diplomas signifying their successful completion of a more generalized liberal arts program.

Although emphasizing that no decision has yet been made, Finley indicated that at least two possible changes are being considered by the group.

One proposal, he said, calls for the establishment of a third "vocational" diploma which would be designed for students desiring to specialize in mechanical or vocational areas.

Another suggestion, instead of calling for more specialization, reflects a desire to return to the one-diploma program. Under this proposal, as in decades past, a single "general" diploma would be awarded all graduates irregardless of their field of study.

Overriding the entire committee effort, Finley said, "is the factor of accountability which is encouraged and emphasized both by the state and in turn by us."

Accountability refers to a system by which schools measure their performance against prescribed standards. Members of the committee include school board members Dr. C. W. Monsees and Donald Barnes, who is chairman of the group. Smith-Cotton students on the committee are Debbie Durley, Gayle Albright, Scott Gardner, Jim Pickett and Darrell Robinson.

Smith-Cotton faculty and administrators on the group include Finley, superintendent Dr. Allan Henningsen, Harry Browder, Richard Cooper, Paul Joquel, Mrs. Jean Routzong and Ralph Schulz.

Other committee members include Mrs. J. E. Block, Mrs. Emmett Fairfax, Mrs. John Q. Fischer, Herb Ford, Mrs. Robert Lindstrom, the Rev. Robert Magee, Robert Maxwell and Mrs. Clayton Wright.

The committee is expected to deliver its recommendations to the school board at their December meeting, Finley said.

Actor 'had the best grapes'

NEW YORK (AP) — "I had the best of the grapes."

When Trevor Howard was starring in "Brief Encounter" in 1946, the cameraman's focus puller was Arthur Ibbetson. This fall, Ibbetson was head cameraman on "Eleven Harrow House," in which Howard was acting. One day they were talking over old times, like having to start work at 4 in the morning in the north of England on "Brief Encounter," because that was the only time they could get an empty platform to shoot the long-range scenes in the train station.

"He said that it isn't fun working in pictures any more. He said, 'It's the same with you, Trev, because you see, we know what we can do. I know what I can do and you know what you can do. There isn't any joy in it any more.' But I told him, 'We had the best of the grapes.'"

And savoring it on his tongue as though a fine liquid made from that fruit, Howard says it again. "By God, I had the best of the grapes."

Trevor Howard, born 57 years ago in Margate, Kent, in the south of England, on the stage from 1934 and concentrating mostly on films since 1944, has been in some respected movies. "The Third Man," "Brief Encounter," "Around the World in 80 Days," "The Heart of the Matter," "Cockleshell Heroes," "Von Ryan's Express," "The Charge of the Light Brigade," "The Key," "Sons and Lovers," "Mutiny on the Bounty."

But often, too, he's had the best of the reviews. For example, a national magazine in October wrote about "A Doll's House": "The only reason to go see the movie is Trevor Howard's exceptional performance as the doomed Dr. Rank."

There are two current movies of Henrik Ibsen's 1879 play, "A

Sorority news

The Rev. Orville Woolery, pastor of Broadway Presbyterian Church, spoke Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Gary Evert, 107 Southwest Blvd., to members of Rho Tau Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha on the Open Door Service Center.

Rev. Woolery gave an information talk on volunteer hours and donations. Little things, such as screwdrivers, pots and pans are appreciated as much as clothing, he said.

The chapter will be represented at the board of directors meeting of the Service Center.

Legion, auxiliary to hold joint installation

Clay T. Henderson Post 98 and Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion will hold a joint installation of officers at 7:00 p.m. Saturday at Bothwell Hotel.

Seventh District Commander, Robert Bruer, Mora, Mo., will install the newly elected officers of the Post. Mrs. Harold Bodedker, Malta Bend, Seventh District president, will install the officers of the Auxiliary. The public is invited.

ERA workshop planned

Three members of Business and Professional Women's Club will represent Sedalia at a workshop sponsored by the Missouri Equal Rights Amendment Coalition Friday and Saturday at the Christian Church conference Center and Campgrounds in Jefferson City.

Mrs. Mabel Glenn, club president, Mrs. Carolyn Hendrickson, legislative chairman, and Mrs. Nyra Price, publicity chairman, will attend. Dr. Marguerite Rawalt, a Washington lawyer and past president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will be the Friday night banquet speaker.

Other speakers will be two national representatives of the League of Women voters, Ms. Lesley Dunn, national legislative action chairman, and Ms. Julia Kim, public relations staff director. "The National Federation (of BPW) has backed this (ERA) for many, many years, Mrs. Price said. "And the local club has gone on record as being for the ERA."

Kennel club elects officers

Sedalia Kennel Club elected officers Tuesday for 1974 at a meeting at Missouri State Bank. The new officers are: Janet Barker, president; Susie Riesel, vice president; Mrs. Elva Lewis, secretary; Mrs. Sandy Estes, treasurer; and Bob Barker, Tom Weems and Melvin Jones, board members.

Polly's pointers

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I crocheted a large ruffled doily (15 inches in diameter) and have not been able to starch it satisfactorily so the ruffles stay as they should. I have tried large pop bottles but they were not big enough and also is one starch better than another — liquid or hot? — B.G.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those so-called standard size cribs. The mattresses that come with them fit just fine but try and buy a new one that fits. They are either too narrow, too short or both.

One I bought was two inches too narrow so we had to buy a thick piece of foam rubber and cut it to the right length so it could be wedged between the mattress and crib. Then my mother-in-law sewed a pretty flannel cover for it and also covered the crib liner to match after pre-shrinking the flannel.

Another Pet Peeve is with postage stamps and is not so much their rising costs but the lesser amount of glue they have on them. — KAY.

DEAR POLLY — Like Marge I have had the problem of trying to make spray cans spray. I clean the tiny opening with a pin and remove the tip and clean the little tube leading to the tip with a pin. After the tip was replaced the can worked again. After using such a can let it set a day or two and the pressure seems to be restored. — T.K.

DEAR POLLY — I had no cover for my typewriter so I cut a plastic garbage bag down the center and used it. This works just fine. — LAURIE.

DEAR LAURIE — Thank you. I split a 16-quart size plastic bag down the center of one side and found it was perfect for my portable typewriter. — POLLY.

Seat cushions are animals

PARIS (AP) — Some people sleep in two drops of French perfume. Mijanou Bachau, in contrast to Captain Hook, can hardly wait to snore away inside her very own crocodile.

It's actually a sleeping bag. Five years ago, the bubbly Mrs. Bachau and her husband Patrick plunged into cushions through force of circumstance. The apartment in which they lived was so low-ceilinged "that you practically have to sit on the floor, anyway."

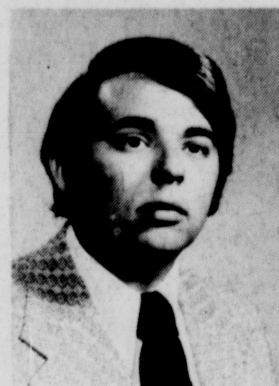

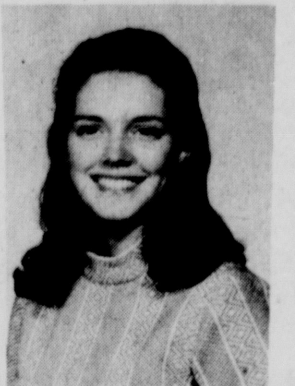

So they made cushions. Actually, Bachau said, they have ideas together and Mijanou sews the cushions.

First there was the tortoise, which comes in all dimensions from turtle-soup size to the specimens no one hopes to meet on the beach. Then there are snakes in liberty print flow-ers, black and white chevrons, printed camels and birds. Next to be converted into a cushion is the camel, kneeling with its hump as a headrest.

Mrs. Bachau, whose maiden name was Bardot, made a plain queen-size pouf for her sister, Brigitte. For Salvador Dali, she created a fire-spitting winged dragon.

The big snake is almost 60 feet long and, when coiled, seats four.

Clown will never retire

By MARCUS WILSON
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — Charlie Smith's story begins "back in the bootleg days" when he slept in his mother's circus costume trunk and took precautions not to suffocate.

The south Denver room that Charlie lives in today isn't much larger than that old costume trunk, and Charlie's ambitions are still the same as when he traveled the nation with his trapeze-artist mother and her fellow circus performers.

After more than 30 years as one of the nation's best circus clowns, and at age "at least 57," Charlie still says all he wants to do is be a clown and make people laugh.

But now he says he's a bit too old to be traveling all the time... sort of like when they used to tell him that he was too young to do anything but help his mom move from one town to another.

The era of the big circuses passed, Charlie said, with the advent of television. Charlie lost his regular job with the circus, but maintained the desire to be nothing but a clown.

He worked on television a little bit, caught on with smaller circuses for short periods, performed as the live entertainment at Saturday Kiddie matinees. More and more, he got work at the grand opening of stores and shopping centers.

"It's the kids that keep me going. I love to hear 'em laugh at me. I really like to work charity, because I can clown and maybe that'll help some kid learn to walk or something."

Charlie the Clown works about one day a week now. One of the area chain shoe stores has him appear at one of its stores every Wednesday.

Still, Charlie likes to wear his clown makeup almost every day.

"The only time I'll quit clowning is when I'm dead in my grave." And he laughed.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Is he limited with slow heart?

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband has a slow heart and his pulse goes down to 34 and a few times 32. If he gets outside and digs around it gets up to 42. He does at times seem to have some high blood pressure, but has not taken anything for it in over a year. Fifteen years ago he had a heart block and it left a scar through the heart. He is 72. We have a garden which he takes care of. He keeps up our yard and trims our hedge but tires easily. His doctor tells him to just live with it, but you tell me what foods are best for people like that.

Dear Reader — The most immediate problem for your husband is to evaluate how well his heart functions mechanically. You don't mention any problems that commonly occur when there is a heart block that causes a very slow heart, and perhaps he has none.

The slow heart rate in this instance means that the normal impulses from the top of the heart are not getting to the lower part of the heart. As long as the heart is able to pump enough blood this way to provide good circulation to the brain, individuals with this problem do fairly well. If there is a problem in circulation to the brain then fainting and other problems develop. These problems cannot be avoided. In patients who need a faster rate, a pacemaker can be installed that stimulates the heart electrically to a rate that maintains good circulation.

Evaluating who does and does not need a pacemaker is not a simple office procedure. Unless your doctor is a heart specialist I would ask him about a referral consultation with a cardiologist in a center where pacemakers are installed to see if your husband needs one or not. It is entirely possible that he doesn't need one or there may be reasons why he is doing better as he is, but it would be good to have the situation clarified.

Diets for this problem are the same as for all other problems related to fatty deposits in the arteries to the heart that lead to heart attacks. If there is a weight problem it should be controlled. The fat, and particularly the saturated fat, in the diet from mammal sources should be limited, and cholesterol found in animal foods should be limited. I'm sure your doctor can help you with this.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Will you please explain why outward hemorrhoids itch so much. Can they become cancerous from so much rubbing?

Dear Reader — Internal hemorrhoids are painless, but they are the ones that bleed. The external ones are located immediately under the external skin where there is an abundant nerve supply. A hemorrhoid is just a varicose vein of the rectal area and the dilated vein can sometimes become clotted (thrombosed) which results in swelling and irritation. This will either rupture and bleed, expelling the small clot that will form, or else it will dry up and be left as a small tag of tissue. These can sometimes cause itching thereafter.

Rubbing and scratching can cause irritation of any area on the body and is usually not recommended but it will not cause cancer.

Anyone who has any rectal problem should have a complete medical examination. Hemorrhoids sometimes pop out because of pressure against the veins. The pressure may be caused by a tumor above the hemorrhoids. That's too important a problem to miss, so let the doctor make sure that it's just hemorrhoids.

Sea lions are study subject

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.
Associated Press Writer

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Sea lions accumulate lots of mercury without getting sick, and Bruce Reed Mate wants to know why humans can't do the same thing.

Mate, 27, is pursuing the question through his studies of sea lions. He got his doctor's degree in biology from the University of Oregon this year based on his four-year study of sea lions.

He believes sea lions can also provide clues to what other chemicals from the ocean can harm man as man comes to depend more on the ocean as a source of food.

"The sea lion is at the end of the food chain, and the mercury content gets more concentrated at each step in the chain. The ocean has contained a lot of mercury for a long time.

"Fish contain a lot of mercury. Humans who eat lots of fish have higher mercury concentrations.

"So if we can find out why sea lions can concentrate such large amounts of mercury without getting sick, it would be useful to man," Mate said.

Sea lions are now protected by the federal government. The animals, even for experimental purposes, are hard to get. Mate hopes to be allowed to dissect a few each year so the organs can be examined.

Mercury is concentrated in hair, so analysis of a sea lion's whisker can give a good idea of how much mercury his body contains.

Mate, who comes from Illinois, is studying with the university's Environmental Health Center on a three-year grant from the National Institutes of Health.

The study will lead Mate also into pollutants for which sea lions don't have a natural immunity. This phase will be even more beneficial to man.

"There are 6,000 new chemicals each year, and many of them end up in the ocean. We hope to be able to tell the effects of these chemicals on man by seeing their effects on seals," Mate said.

Mate became interested in seals and marine biology while working at the Charleston Station, on Coos Bay, in the summer of 1968.

He spent much of his time counting seals at Simpson Reef and other spots along the Oregon coast to further his studies of seal migrations. Simpson Reef is a popular breeding and loafing place for seals, as many as 1,000 at a time.

Mate got to know many of the sea lions by their cuts and markings.

There are two kinds of sea lions on the Oregon Coast. The Northern sea lion, which is around 4 yards long and weighs a ton, breeds along the entire Pacific Coast.

The California sea lion, 2½ yards long and 600 pounds in weight, breeds in Mexico and California. Then the males swim north.

Mate has followed the migrations along the Oregon Coast but says neither he nor anybody else knows where they go from there. He estimates they swim 3,000 miles a year.

He will try to get a federal grant so that he can install radio transmitters in a few sea lions and then monitor their movements through the course of a year.

Two-year-old statement is now criticized

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police Board Chairman Theodore McNeal was criticized Wednesday for a remark attributed to him in published reports in connection with the death two years ago of a Herrin, Ill., man.

McNeal was quoted in a story published earlier in the week as saying the death of Joseph Lee Wilson in a police holdover cell here in August 1971 was probably caused by a policeman.

The remark drew some criticism from the St. Louis Police Officers Association, and McNeal said later that he had been misquoted. The police board president said he did not say in the earlier interview that Wilson's death was probably caused by a policeman but that it was a possibility.

The policemen's association said the remark attributed to McNeal was an indictment on the credibility of every officer in the department and noted that two grand juries were unable to find evidence that Wilson's death was a homicide.

Police officers said they arrested Wilson at his mother's home in St. Louis after his mother reported he had been drinking and causing a disturbance. Officers said Wilson fell several times.

There's no ignoring success of two skin magazines for women

By JACKI KING
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A photographer focuses on the reclining nude, posing seductively for the centerfold of a national magazine. The well-built model — with hairy chest expanded and biceps bulging — looks lustfully into the camera lens.

The centerfold model is a well-known actor and his photograph will appear in a women's magazine with a different look — Playgirl.

When Playgirl began publishing last May many thought the pictures of unclad men were a put on, a comic strip.

For years, psychologists claimed that women weren't stimulated by photographs of male nudes, and few took Playgirl seriously at first.

But there's no ignoring success. In its first six issues, Playgirl's print run has swollen from 600,000 to 2,000,000.

And now the publisher of Penthouse — Playboy's major competition in men's magazines — has conceived a skin magazine for women. Viva's maiden issue was released Sept. 18.

Viva and Playgirl both have interviews with celebrities, fiction, cartoons, monthly horoscopes, book and movie reviews, letters from readers and naked men between their covers.

Their presentation of the male nudes is different.

Playgirl uses entertainers for its four-page color foldouts, and allows them approval of the prints to be used. The first six issues featured Lyle Waggoner, George Maharis, Gary Conway, Fabian Forte, Fred Williamson and Don Stroud. None were paid for posing, says the magazine's publisher. They did it for the exposure.

Bob Guccione, the 42-year-old publisher-editor of Viva, says he considers male centerfolds "trite, contrived," although he does use female centerfolds in his Penthouse magazine.

Guccione thinks women respond more to the "real-life approach, pictures of honest situations and honest people, artistically presented." Viva's first issue has a pictorial story of a boxer and the fighter is shown in the nude only in natural situations — taking a shower, sitting in a steam bath, getting a massage.

"More often than not, we will avoid celebrities because the reader has a predetermined idea of their personalities which takes away some of the ability to fantasize," Guccione says. However, nude pictures of actor Ben Murphy and a girlfriend will appear in an upcoming issue.

The publishers of Playgirl and Viva agree on one point. Both are convinced that most women enjoy the erotica in their magazines. Psychologists, too, are taking another look at women's reactions to erotica.

"The women's liberation movement and the sexual revolution have contributed to a general loss of inhibitions among women about sex," said David Sears, a professor of

Erotica for women

Publisher-editor Bob Guccione, selecting male nude pictures for his new magazine, Viva, projects slides on to the wall of the New York hotel room out of which he works. Guccione also publishes Penthouse, the men's magazine. Viva is a counterpart publication for women whose maiden issue was released Sept. 18. psychology at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"There might have been some women who would have enjoyed this type of picture all along, but these kinds of photos have never been available before, except in brown paper wrappers. I don't think the majority of women are turned on by these pictures. That would be too radical a change to expect all at once.

"But, as women's traditional roles keep changing — as they become more liberated in their attitudes, feelings and behavior — the more likely they are to respond to erotica."

Cosmopolitan was the first women's magazine to have a nude male centerfold when it featured actor Burt Reynolds in the April 1972 issue. Cosmopolitan editors have called the Reynolds picture a one-shot "fun feature."

Douglas Lambert, the 39-year-old publisher of Playgirl, says it was the success of the Cosmopolitan centerfold that gave him the format for his magazine.

Playgirl is Lambert's virgin publishing venture.

"It is successful because I know what women want," he says, a smile spreading across his youthful face.

Lambert says he has applied the same formula to the magazine that he has to his large-grossing Playgirl nightclub, which he had been operating successfully in conservative Orange County for 10 years.

"We give 'em a variety of things," he says.

"We have seriousness, jokes and sex. And, the overall effect is what happens on a stage when everything is going right. I think the magazine is successful because I have a knack to choose the right act."

Viva's publisher subscribes to the theory that "centerfold beefcake is demeaning to both men and women." Guccione thinks women prefer unposed pictures of male nudes.

"I think both men and women like to fantasize sexually," Guccione says. "But, when a man does it it's as if he's looking at the sexual object through the small end of a telescope. He focuses on just the object. But I think women look at a sexual object with wide angle vision. To fantasize, they need

Publishing goes lib

Working from a New York base in a hotel bedroom, Bob Guccione, publisher of Penthouse, gets on with the business of launching his newest concept: a magazine for women, called Viva. With Guccione is his girlfriend, Kathy Keaton, who is listed as Viva's associate publisher. Viva features male nudes, and its first issue, last September, had a print run of 1,000,000 and was labeled "collectors' item" on the cover. Guccione claims it will be a magazine for the complete woman, the liberated woman. (AP) atmosphere, romance, a man doing something, not just standing there."

Guccione, who began as a painter and then became a cartoonist and photographer, still takes many of the pictures that appear in his magazines.

"There will be more and more nudity in Viva as time goes on," says the Brooklyn-born publisher. "But Viva will remain one magazine for women where the reader won't have to skip through cooking columns and stories on how to raise your child to find good fiction and well-written investigative articles. This is a magazine for the complete woman, the liberated woman."

Playgirl's publisher says he is convinced that the well-rounded woman "is interested in cooking and household hints as well as the world situation."

"I'm not really, really worried about Viva," said Lambert.

There is one area where the two publishers are not at odds. Neither expects the stricter legal definition of obscenity issued by the U.S. Supreme Court last June to affect his magazine.

"Viva is too artistic for that," says Guccione.

Lambert admits that after the Supreme Court guidelines were announced, one Cleveland dealer took Playgirl off his newstand for a few days, "but the public's outcry made him start selling it again."

Neither Lambert nor Guccione plans to start a chain of private clubs for women similar to the Playboy and Penthouse clubs for men. Nor do they plan to begin calling their male models wolves or rabbits or any other counterpart to the Playboy bunny and the Penthouse Pet.

Docking is taken back by meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas, who joined 11 other governors for an advance briefing at the White House on President Nixon's energy message, says he was nonplussed about the urgent call.

"This administration is somewhat different than others we've had," he told newsmen Wednesday following a one hour briefing by the President. "With (President) Johnson, there were lots of telephone contacts."

The governors and three mayors responded to a moment's notice to the President's call to the capital. But there was nothing new to the message, said Docking, adding, "I think the die was cast."

The governor felt he was called because Kansas already has begun studying the energy crisis and has installed an "energy hotline" in Topeka to respond to fuel needs.

Insofar as Nixon's message concerning the energy crisis, Docking said he and the other governors gave him "pretty general support."

But the Kansas governor said he gained the impression the administration's schemes for conserving fuel were hastily put together.

Rennovation is Missouri's aim

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The group charged with planning Missouri's activities in conjunction with the 1976 national bicentennial celebration has decided to focus on restoration of an area near the capitol.

The Missouri American Revolution Bicentennial Commission voted Wednesday to give the state Park Board $10,000 in startup money for renovation of the old Lohman's Landing area.

The vote to move toward preserving the area as an historic site was unanimous, but legislators on the commission expressed skepticism about chances of getting the legislature to approve a proposed $600,000 capital improvements budget for the project.

State Sen. James A. Noland, R-Osage Beach, made the motion for approval of the project as the major thrust of the state's 1976 bicentennial efforts, contingent upon investigation of federal or private sources of revenue for the renovation.

The commission has $46,000 left from $68,000 in federal grants awarded to the state on a quarterly basis since 1971. Another $22,000 in federal money has been promised.

James L. Wilson, state parks director, said he was considering including some of the $600,000 in capital improvement funds in his budget requests for next year.

The action was taken after Mrs. Christopher S. Bond, wife of the governor, gave a presentation at a luncheon for the commission in the governor's mansion.

Cooperating with the Park Board, she proposed that the four-story Lohman's Landing building, constructed in the 1830's, be preserved along with two nearby buildings. The Lohman's Landing area is near the Missouri River between the mansion and the capitol.

Mrs. Bond also proposed that the area be renamed Jefferson Landing, its name before Charles E. Lohman bought it and operated it as a general store and blacksmith's shop in the days of steamboat traffic on the Missouri.

In the past, some state officials have proposed that the buildings be torn down to make way for a state parking garage. The state owns the land in question.

Mrs. Bond proposed that the old Lohman's Landing building be used for a museum, a souvenir shop and office space for the historical division of the Park Board.

Part of Jefferson Street near the capitol would be closed to provide space for parking by tour buses.

Astronaut overcame early handicaps

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Thirty years ago, Edward G. Gibson was a bed-ridden boy in danger of losing a leg to a bone disease.

Soon, Gibson, a former high school and college athlete and now a highly qualified scientist, will be launched into orbit on Skylab 3, man's longest space journey.

Gibson, a 37-year-old scientist-astronaut and an expert in solar physics, spent much of his boyhood battling a bone rotting disease called osteomyelitis. The ailment causes bones to develop soft spots and then atrophy.

He spent months in hospitals at ages 2, 4 and 8 and at one point amputation seemed to be the only hope.

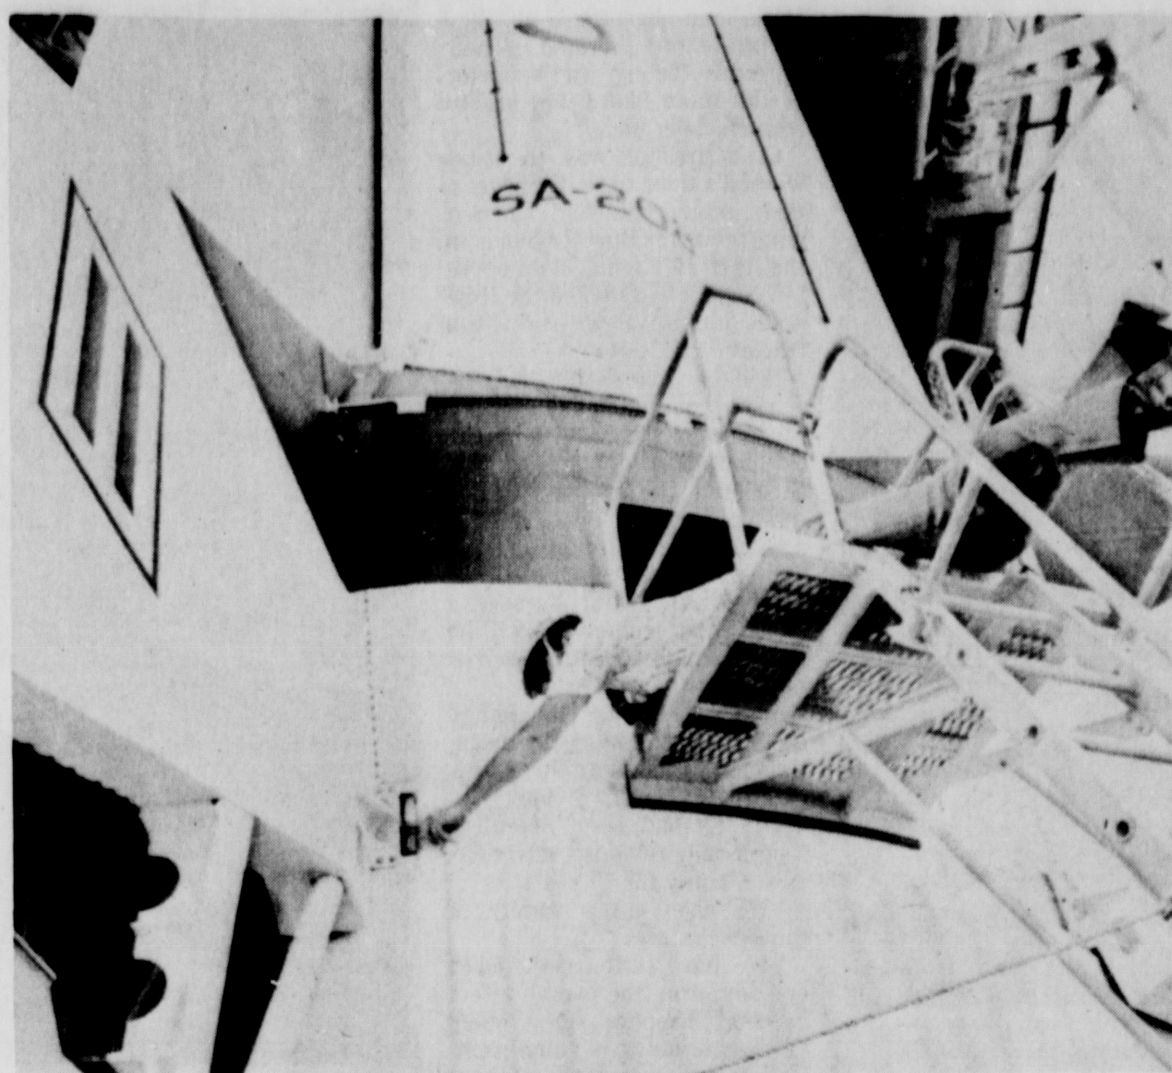

"They were going to saw the leg off," said Gibson, "but penicillin had just come out. They tried it and arrested the disease."

But the long months in hospitals had a devastating effect on his school record, which was already far from outstanding.

"I was never a good student in elementary school," he recalled. "I went through the first grade twice and just to prove that wasn't a fluke, I went through the fourth grade twice."

Athletics and a late intellectual blooming turned his life around, he said.

"My dad got me into athletics, swimming in particular, to build up my leg," Gibson said. "The athletics is probably the one thing that kept me on the straight and narrow as a teenager. I think I learned an awful lot from it."

By the time he was in high school, Gibson was playing halfback on the football team and running track. He also discovered math and science.

The interests carried him on to the University of Rochester where he played quarterback, ran a 2:02 half mile on the track team and graduated with a degree in engineering. He went on to earn masters and doctorate degrees from the California Institute of Technology.

The dark-haired and handsome astronaut is a native of Buffalo, N.Y. He grew up in Kenmore, N.Y., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calder A. Gibson, still live.

The spaceman's father owns a manufacturing firm and Gibson studied engineering in college with the idea of going into his father's business.

"I thought it would give me a good background," he said. "But after two or three years, I concluded I was just not cut out to be a businessman. My nature was more science-oriented."

Gibson turned permanently toward science in his senior year when he won a National Science Foundation fellowship and enrolled in Cal Tech.

The astronaut is married to the former Julia Ann Volk, his childhood sweetheart who was raised in Tonawanda, a community near Gibson's boyhood home. They met when he was 18 and a life guard at a swimming pool. She was 14 and a frequent patron of the pool.

They have four children, Janet, 13; John, 9; Julie, 5, and Joseph, 2.

Then one morning, Mrs. Gibson was reading the newspaper at the breakfast table and, as she tells it, said to her husband, "Hey, here's a good job opportunity." She read him a story about the space agency looking for scientist-astronauts.

"You could see how his interest suddenly perked up," she recalled. "He just dashed out the door to get the application forms and send them in."

Gibson was named an astronaut in 1965 and spent his first year with the space agency learning how to fly jets.

He also learned to fly helicopters, a skill which led to his only aviation accident.

During a solo training flight, Gibson landed a chopper on a flat brown plain near a bayou. The plain turned out to be a mud flat and the helicopter sank, tearing itself apart with its own rotor blades.

"It wasn't my aeronautical skill which caused the accident," said the astronaut of his mud flat crack up. "It was that my geological judgement was bad."

Gibson and his family live in Nassau Bay, a community of comfortable homes and tree-shaded winding streets near the Johnson Space Center.

Cartoon writer to have feature on television

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Hart, as a goodly number of kids, college students and general citizens know, draws the "B.C." comic strip, which is sort of a hipsters' "Flintstones."

Come Nov. 19, he'll have his first full-length cartoon feature on television, a half-hour effort on NBC called "B.C. The First Thanksgiving."

Most of it concerns a turkey who is uneasy at the idea of being dined on. Hart approaches interviews about the show approximately the same way the turkey contemplates the ax.

"I'm trying to get into the Guinness Book of Records as the worst interview of all time," he unhappily explained. Then he started laughing. "So you might as well prepare yourself."

Hart, a 41-year-old native of Endicott, N.Y., isn't a hostile wit. It's just that, well, a guy who draws ants that talk and anteaters that go "Zot!" as they dine is apt to be a bit strange upstairs.

In his defense, we'd point out that he's a great fan of the old "Roadrunner" cartoons, breaks up at the mention of Dudley Do-Right of the Royal Mounted Police and considers jazz trumpeter Jack Sheldon, a regular on the Merv Griffin show, one of the most naturally funny men of all time.

Hart, in short, is a normal cartoonist. His "B.C." strip has been nationally syndicated for nearly 13 years, but he's been a professional cartoonist since he was 19.

"I guess originally it was the only thing that I knew how to do," he said. "I started out just working nights and studying other people's drawings, then trying some of my own."

He continued drawing, even during a Korean war stint with the Air Force, but despite some success in magazines he didn't really hit until he happened to see Charles Schulz' "Peanuts" strip.

Nixon threat leaves jury in deadlock

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A U.S. District Court jury, unable to resolve a deadlock in the case of a federal prisoner charged with threatening President Nixon's life, has been discharged.

It was not immediately indicated if a new trial will be scheduled for the defendant, Eugene Michael Hart, 30, who was serving a sentence at the U.S. Medical Center here for making an earlier threat against the President.

Don Poole, a Secret Service special agent in Kansas City, testified he heard Hart make this statement:

"I'm going to Washington, D.C., and get on a congressional tour of the White House and when President Nixon comes downstairs, I will jump from behind the curtain and shoot him with a .45 pistol."

Two letters allegedly written by Hart making similar threats were also entered into evidence.

Dr. George Parlato, a psychiatrist, testified Hart was suffering from residual schizophrenia.

Once-famous bank robber looks back

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Harvey Bailey does not look 86 years old. His physique is that of a man perhaps 20 years younger. And with his white hair, sparkling black eyes and square jaw, he looks more like a retired successful farmer than a retired bank robber.

But between 1920 and 1932, John Harvey Bailey was America's most successful bank robber.

Today, after spending nearly 40 years in prison, including 12 years in Alcatraz, he lives a quiet life here with his wife of eight years.

Bailey recently retired as a cabinet maker, a trade he learned as a boy and resumed while in prison. In 1964, he was paroled from prison and moved to this southwestern Missouri city.

Not long after, Bailey met J. Evetts Haley, a Texas writer and historian. Now Haley, fascinated by Bailey's life, has written a book about it, "Robbing Banks Was My Business."

Bailey says he decided to tell his life story to Haley because he "wanted to say that crime doesn't pay. I hope my story may be a warning to young Americans who may be tempted."

Bailey admits that he was tempted as a young man. "I began as a bootlegger," he says. "It was easy money. But then I graduated to banks. There was more money in robbing banks. I robbed about two banks a year during the 12 years I was in that business."

Bailey talks freely of those days when he worked with such desperadoes as Machine Gun Kelly, Alvin Karpis, Frank Nash, Fred Burke, Pretty Boy Floyd and others.

"I knew them all, and I worked with them," he said, adding, "Al Capone was one of the best boys you ever met. I knew him at Alcatraz. He worked with me for three years. I watched over him because some of the punks wanted to stick a knife in him."

Of Pretty Boy Floyd, Bailey recalled, "He was a thief, but there was honor among thieves then."

Bailey said that in 1924, when a serious drought hit the Cookson Hills in Oklahoma, he and Floyd broke into a grocery store at Sallisaw, Okla., loaded a pickup truck with groceries and distributed them to the "poor" Cherokees and other folks in the hills.

Wild turkey out of trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans' taste for our traditional holiday dish — turkey — has not changed substantially since the Pilgrims sat down with the Indians over 300 years ago and shared four wild turkeys. This cheerful event nearly marked the beginning of the end for wild turkeys.

And yet today, more than 128,000 wild turkeys are "harvested" or shot annually with no threat to a species which now numbers over 1 million nationally. Alabama alone boasts about 250,000 and in Iowa, where the wild turkey became extinct in 1907, the population has now reached nearly 400.

Man was largely responsible for the birds' decline but without him the turkey might not have made its astounding comeback, says Dr. Donald A. Spencer, consultant to the National Agricultural Chemicals Assn.

The decline began when settlers, needing more space for towns, cities, and agriculture, began encroaching on the turkeys' habitat. And, as with much wild game, the turkey also became a "cash crop" and was heavily hunted. Adding to the demise were natural predators, disease, and in some areas, adverse weather conditions. By 1900, the wild turkey was on its way to becoming a memory.

In order to reverse the decline, Spencer relates, protection programs were initiated, with "bag limits" established. When it became clear this would not stem the dwindling of flocks, most states banned turkey hunting altogether, and turkey restoration was begun in earnest. Eventually, scientists, as well as wildlife experts got into the effort, and exhaustive studies were made on remaining turkeys.

First efforts to trap turkeys and release them in areas where the flocks were losing, proved difficult, as the demand for turkeys outstripped the number which could be trapped. Experiments were conducted, raising turkeys on commercial farms, but birds raised in this manner lose their inherent wildness and tend to follow the persons who release them.

***

Today, trapping techniques have improved, Spencer notes. Trapping sites are baited about one month prior to an attempt to trap, with the hopes of attracting a large flock. When the birds group themselves in the desired position, biologists in a camouflaged blind fire a net over the feeding birds with the help of cannons.

In some cases, the birds are banded for later study. Every effort is made to release the birds in a new location the same day they are trapped to avoid prolonged confinement.

A typical release of 16 birds has been arrived at as being the minimum number for a successful release. Experience has shown that, left undisturbed, 16 turkeys can expand their numbers in three or four years to the point where the area may even be able to support some hunting.

This depends upon all desirable factors being present — plenty of food, water, and cover. The absence of heavy rain — poults (baby turkeys) are extremely vulnerable and drown easily — is paramount to successful turkey raising.

Another limiting factor Spencer reports is a disease called fowl pox or "black head," which can completely devastate a wild turkey preserve. Use of pesticides has largely eliminated this problem.

In some parts of the country, fire ants have been known to attack nests and devour the poults. As with fowl pox, pesticides have reduced the fire ant population and given the wild turkey a better chance of survival. But fire ants still threaten.

Turkey restoration has proved costly, with each trapped bird representing a cost of about $266. Seventy-five per cent of this is financed by Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration funds, with the remaining 25 per cent provided through the sale of hunting licenses.

The Pacific continental shelf has a maximum width of 50 miles.

Net farm income report expected

By DON KENDAL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will issue a new estimate on Friday of 1973 net farm income—and there is evidence it could top the currently estimated $24 billion.

Two developments this week point to a possible boost in the income estimate.

Farm exports, which have an important bearing on producer income, were predicted Tuesday to reach a record high of $19 billion for the fiscal year ending next June 30, up nearly 50 per cent from 1972-73.

The export estimate, although hinted for some weeks earlier, is much higher than many USDA experts believed possible.

Another hint was in a speech by Don Paarlberg, the department's director of economics, who told a crop production conference in Minneapolis Tuesday night that 1973 net farm income will be "in the range of $24 billion to $26 billion."

The department's Outlook and Situation Board will issue Friday a summary of a "Demand and Price situation" report telling the latest official estimate of 1973 net farm income and how various commodity prices are shaping up going into next year.

Paarlberg, in his speech, also indicated some of the department's thinking about 1974 and predicted it would likely be "the third good year in a row, albeit not as good as 1973."

Compared with $19 billion worth of farm products expected for export this year, agricultural imports are estimated at only $8.9 billion. The difference means a surplus of about $10 billion.

Thus, according to USDA, the $10 billion advantage in farm exports could eliminate any over-all U.S. trade deficit this fiscal year.

Vet suspected of malpractice

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell us what to do when a precious pet dies in a hospital and you don't believe you are getting the straight story from the veterinarian.

Our poodle was anesthetized so an X-ray could be taken. He never woke up. We were shocked and heartsick. All the veterinarian said was, "I don't know what happened."

My husband took the dog's body to another veterinarian for an autopsy. The report was: "No organic illness present. The dog could have had an overdose of anesthetic, or a lethal reaction to the drug."

The indifference of the first vet is what turned us up. He didn't seem to care that our dog had died, nor was he particularly interested to find out why. Wouldn't you think he'd want to know what mistake had been made in order to keep from making it again? I now suspect he already knew what he had done wrong. What recourse does a pet owner have? — Sad Family In Va.

Dear Family: Here are two options open to pet owners who are not satisfied with the treatment in an animal hospital. You can contact the local chapter of the Veterinary Medical Association or write to Dr. Donald Price, American Veterinarian Medical Association, 600 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago I did something I have never done before. I went through my husband's wallet. I was actually looking for money but I found a whole lot more than the $10 I needed to pay a bill.

Tucked away in a hidden compartment was a picture of a girl holding a baby. I recognized her at once. She lives in the apartment above my husband's sister-in-law. Now I know why he spent so much time there when I was hospitalized last year for nerves.

I can understand a man with a sick wife having an affair, but after finding that picture I'm afraid it was more than just a fling. I hate to tell you what I think about the baby.

Should I go see the girl and ask for the whole story? I will never get the truth out of my husband. He is a terrible liar. Or, should I pretend I never saw the picture, play dumb and go on dying inside? — More Than I Bargained For

Dear More: One picture is worth a thousand words — especially words from a "terrible liar."

Tell your husband you found Suit over low number plate is dismissed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — One of two suits brought by a Montgomery City couple seeking to retain their low-numbered auto license plates has been dismissed in Cole County Circuit Court.

The action by Judge Byron Kinder was made public Wednesday.

However, another suit by John W. and Dorothy Dyke is still alive and a motion to dismiss that suit will be heard Nov. 16.

In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Dyke filed a motion Wednesday to set aside Kinder's order in the first suit, which asked for an injunction against the revenue director, to prevent him from taking away their license number.

They have had their number, 1-248, since 1948.

In the second suit, the Dykes asked for an order forcing Spradling to simply renew their license instead of issuing a new one, thereby insuring that they can keep number 1-248.

The attorney general's office argued that persons have no property right to their license plates.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond and Revenue Director James R. Spradling have said they will discontinue the practice of issuing low-numbered plates to persons who are not state officials.

Bond said the low numbers too often are used as a form of political patronage. The suit said the Revenue Department plans to discontinue issuing numbers through 9,999.

the picture. Ask him if he wants to go with you for counseling. If he refuses, talk to your doctor. Since you were hospitalized last year for "nerves," you surely have one. Take his advice in regard to your future plans and good luck. You need it.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell me why, when couples get together for dinner or an evening, all the men seem to end up on one side of the room and all the women on the other? I've seen this happen time and time again and I think it's awful.

I have tried to break up the sexist conversational group but it doesn't work. This goes on all over, Ann. What's the reason? — Cemented Partition

Dear C.P.: The women are going to hate me but I believe it's mostly their fault. When they begin to play "And Then Junior Said," or "I Fix Chicken Like This," or "The Best Floor Polish Is —" the men wander off. Can you blame them?

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." ## West Coast establishes beachhead endeavor

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While Broadway dithers with a protracted attack of creative jitters, this cinema center has been on a spree of stage activity.

Some of it has been aimed at preparing shows that hopefully will be a big part of Broadway's tomorrow. Another phase has been aiming in the opposite direction, to cut loose from New York as the source from which all thespic blessings flow.

Exposure to 11 assorted items in both categories during a one-week cram leaves a visitor with mixed feelings of enthusiasm and despondency. Most reassuring, though, is the evidence that West Coast professional theater has established a firm beachhead of endeavor.

After all, it was just seven years ago that the Music Center opened, to become a focal center for long-range resident work after fairly haphazard decades of major and community dalliance with drama. Bigtimers were just too busy making movies.

The recent surge of events resulted from a coincidental sequence of institutional and commercial bookings. Among them was a new free Shakespeare festival, an outdoor rally of amateur groups assembled on a financial shoestring, the arrival of big-budget ventures en route to Gotham.

Probably most important of all was an "In the Works" orgy of exhibits by the Music Center's Mark Taper Forum that had 10 plays and four encounters with non-theatrical celebrities performing all over town.

That venture, according to Gordon Davidson, developed out of a three-pronged determination to enlarge audiences, boost morale among local talent "and reverse the notion that nothing important happens outside New York."

Davidson, artistic director of the Taper, feels he has "already out-done Joe Papp," the ebullient dynamo of Manhattan stagecraft.

In a way that should delight distaff-libbers, the civic playbill at times took on the aspect of a strictly female festival, with girls like Scarlett and Lorelei and Edith and Ronnie and Kashka performing all over the place.

"Gone With the Wind," circuitously plodding via Tokyo, London and other remote points toward Gotham, is literally and artistically a one-horse affair in which the burning of Atlanta seems as soporific as the siege of Troy. Lesley Ann Warren, who once portrayed Cinderella, is pretty much doing that again as Miss O'Hara.

"Lorelei," a semi-new edition of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" again has the inimitable Carol Channing. The show claims to be still in revision so final opinion on its merits is here deferred until January arrival on the Great White Way.

One of Tennessee Williams' tormented heroines was under mildly effective analysis by Eva Marie Saint in "Summer and Smoke."

The most glowing major event was Deborah Kerr in "The Day After the Fair," an exquisite Victorian account of a genteel lady who falls in love with a gentleman to whom she writes letters on behalf of a servant girl. Miss Kerr, however, hasn't decided yet whether Broadway fits her plans.

If the plot of the play has a familiar sound, know that equal time has been allotted at the Ahmanson theater to Rostand's star-crossed male scribe, "Cyrano de Bergerac." That production boasts Richard Chamberlain, continuing brilliantly to develop as an actor of classic stature. It might take Eastward too.

"I'm certainly not a natural Cyrano type," says Chamberlain of his swaggering Gascon role. "But after Hamlet and Richard II, I feel I'm freeing up a bit as an actor. Now I'm letting it all hang out more."

A significant footnote attaches to "Cyrano." It was directed by Joseph Hardy, one of Broadway's busiest and most successful young staggers. He's been infected with westward-show enthusiasm and vows his base of operations henceforth will be on this side of the continent. Another Hardy venture, the musical "Gigi," is, however, due on the Main Stem shortly.

The expanded facilities made it possible for Perone to "make a splash by condensing all workshop activities into a sustained exhibit instead of stretching them out between the main subscription series."

The display was a highly eclectic gamut. Susan Miller crammed all the four-letter words into the first five minutes of "Confessions of a Female Disorder," an ironic celebration of a girl's transit from puberty to middle age.

Another slant on feminine tensions was assembled in "L.A. WOMAN," by 10 assorted-age confessors who then acted it all out, to final snip of a bandage wraparound off one participant in weird, non-erotic strip.

Other events included a drama about three female suicides, an expose of the corporation man at his insidious worst, the mythic deeds of Billy the Kid. The black experience was observed with "What the Wine-Sellers Buy." An over-the-hill sports hero was celebrated, so was a has-been rock-singer.

Many of the pieces seemed one-shot confessionals, with inherent shortcomings atoned by erratic scenes of sharp and touching perception.

People in the news

ARCHAMP, France (AP) — Olympic ski champion Jean-Claude Killy, who won three gold medals in 1968, has married actress Daniele Gaubert. The French state radio reported on Wednesday that Killy and Miss Gaubert were married in a civil ceremony in this Swiss border town last Friday. Killy is now a professional skier.

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham will be given the 1973 Elijah Parish Lovejoy award here March 20.

Colby College announced on Wednesday Mrs. Graham would be given the journalistic achievement award during a convocation.

The award is named for an 1826 Colby graduate killed in Alton, Ill., in 1837 while defending his presses against a mob which opposed his editorial stand opposing slavery.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Frank Sinatra has signed on for two appearances at Caesars Palace hotel here in his latest emergence from a self-imposed retirement.

In recent weeks, Sinatra taped a television special and appeared at a live performance at Fresno, Calif. He also has a new album and an upcoming television special.

Sinatra will make his first appearance here for one week starting next Jan. 25. The date for the second and the financial arrangements were not announced.

Dr. Robert W. Vit, 29, formerly of St. Louis, has taken over the dental practice of Dr. William Roberts at 1810 West 11th and is now practicing general dentistry here.

Dr. Roberts has taken a position with the Veterans Administration in Kansas City.

A 1970 graduate of dental school at the University of Missouri, Kansas City, Dr. Vit has just completed a three-year tour of active duty as a dentist with the U.S. Army, including two years of duty in Bangkok, Thailand.

Dr. Vit, his wife Lorrie and their two daughters now reside at 2211 South Kentucky.

Governor convinced of crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It is no longer a problem," said Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers after meeting with President Nixon on the fuel shortage. "It is a crisis of major proportions."

"We are heading toward the most acute shortages of energy since World War II," Nixon told the American people in a nationally televised address Wednesday night.

Just three weeks after Arab oil nations cut off oil shipments to the United States, Americans have begun to realize just how serious the fuel situation may be this winter.

Nixon, seeking emergency powers from Congress to cut down on energy demand and preserve petroleum supplies, recognized the Arab oil weapon in his speech, saying it will mean more than two million fewer barrels of oil daily by the end of the month.

Petroleum supplies will be at least 10 per cent and maybe 17 per cent short of needs, the President said.

A few weeks ago, however, few people inside or outside the government saw the situation in the same grim light that Nixon saw it in his speech.

Before the Arab nations decided to wield the oil weapon, the administration was saying the nation would be able to survive the winter despite an already tight supply situation.

It didn't become clear to the administration until about a week ago just how serious the shortage will be.

Emerging from a meeting with the White House energy adviser John A. Love last Thursday, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the "crisis is much worse than all of us had anticipated a week ago."

Love conceded to reporters Wednesday night: "We have an emergency now." He and Nixon said the administration is going ahead with developing plans to ration gasoline.

The arithmetic of the crisis has changed dramatically in a few short weeks.

Less than a month ago, U.S. officials were saying that the nation gets only about 6 per cent of the oil used by Americans from Arab nations. But that amount, it turns out, is in direct shipments.

If direct and indirect shipments are figured, the shortages range between 10 and 17 per cent, according to Nixon. Some of his experts say it could be as high as 21 per cent.

Administration experts had expected an oil shortfall of between 100,000 and 800,000 barrels a day before the Arab oil cutoff was announced.

But they said the cutoff threatens the nation with a loss of between 2 million and 2.5 million barrels of oil a day on top of that.

The potential shortage could be as high as 3 million barrels daily if the Pentagon is forced to use only domestic oil sources for its supplies.

Emergency energy program discussed

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are questions and answers on the scope and impact of the "energy emergency" program announced Wednesday night by President Nixon.

Q. Will homes and offices be colder this winter because of energy shortages?

A. The President asks that home thermostats be reduced by six degrees so the average daytime temperature will be 68 degrees. Operators of offices, factories and stores are asked to cut their heating needs by 10 per cent through lowering thermostats or adopting shorter working hours.

Home owners and businesses that heat with electricity or natural gas are expected to make the same sacrifices as those using oil and the federal government will set an example by lowering thermostats in its buildings to 65 to 68 degrees in daytime.

Q. Will there be rationing of gasoline and home heating oil?

A. The federal government is developing a gasoline rationing plan that will be put into use if needed, and a proposed plan to ration heating oil will be announced in about four weeks.

Q. Will there be restrictions on the use of automobiles?

A. The President has suggested that states lower maximum speed limits to 50 miles per hour and asked Congress for emergency authority to cut speed limits through federal action. He also suggested parking taxes be raised, vehicles with but a single occupant be barred from designated sections of each city and preferential parking be provided for participants in car pools. All federally owned vehicles will observe a 50 mile an hour speed limit.

Q. Is thought being given to adopting year-around Daylight Saving Time?

A. Nixon asked Congress to authorize adoption of Daylight Savings Time throughout the year, saying it could reduce electricity and heating demands by as much as three per cent.

Q. Will there be curbs on use of energy for lighting?

A. Nixon seeks congressional authority to order a curtailment of outdoor electrical advertising and ornamental lighting, including gas lamps to be found in front of many homes. He also wants power to limit store hours, which would save on both heat and light. None of his proposals would affect use of lighting in the home.

Q. Will any of the administration's proposals result in higher taxes?

A. Nixon said the government is considering imposing "control fees" or surcharges to discourage excessive use of natural gas and electricity and asked Congress for authority to levy them.

Q. How will the energy conservation program affect use of such public carriers as airlines and bus lines?

A. Nixon noted the Federal Aviation Administration already is working with airlines to reduce flying speeds and limit the amount of taxiing but said shortages of jet fuel could lead to a 10 per cent cutback in scheduled flights. As for buses, he suggests they be given exclusive highway lanes on commuter routes and said the federal government will give priority to applications for federal grants to buy buses for mass transit.

Q. Will the energy-saving measures lead to greater pollution?

A. Yes, Nixon asked Congress for authority to waive state air and water quality laws and regulations on a case-by-case basis, without notice or hearing, if necessary to permit use of more plentiful but dirtier fuels.

Q. Will the President's program result in higher prices?

A. In some cases, probably yes. For example, he asked Congress to authorize temporary suspension of federal regulation of prices on new production of natural gas for the duration of the emergency.

Q. How bad is the energy shortage?

A. The White House said daily supplies of crude oil and oil products now are running about 10 per cent below demand but added that if the current cutoff of Arab-supplied oil continues supplies will run 17 per cent short of demand. In shortest supply are heating oil, diesel fuel, kerosene, residual fuel oil and jet fuel. While gasoline is falling about 7 per cent short of demand, expected shifts in refinery output to greater production of heating oil at the expense of gasoline would boost the gas shortage significantly.

Awkward

"I'm swimming, but I don't seem to be getting anywhere," might be the thought of the center goose as the waters of Lake Ocheda, Worthington,

Minn., froze over this week as unseasonably cold weather swept down from Canada, bringing a touch of winter to Minnesota. (UPI)

Prompt action vowed in crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders have promised prompt action on most or all of the energy-saving measures requested by President Nixon in his address to the nation.

Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson said his committee would hold public hearings on emergency legislation today and would report a bill out by Friday. Senate approval could be expected next week, Jackson said.

On the House side, Democratic whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., predicted action on the President's proposals before the December recess. "If he wants a bill, we'll give him a bill," said Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., chairman of the House subcommittee on power.

In his Wednesday night address, Nixon accused Congress of failing to act on any of the energy measures he had sent to the Hill. The President said it was now "imperative" that Congress pass legislation establishing year-around Daylight Saving Time, authorizing relaxation of clean-air standards, the tapping of naval petroleum reserves and giving the government power to reduce speed limits nationwide and restrict working hours.

Macdonald said Nixon already had the authority to do most of what he asked and accused the President of playing "an absolute shell game" in blaming Congress for inaction.

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., said he and other oil-state senators oppose one presidential proposal that would allow the federal government to regulate the interstate production and use of oil and gas.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said the President's message "did not contain enough specifics in dollars or programs to do the job. The $10 billion mentioned by the President is considerably less than we spent on Apollo and probably only 10 per cent of what is actually needed," he added.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Nixon "has made a good — although belated — beginning in facing up to the energy shortage," and the National Association of Manufacturers said it "supports the general thrust" of the President's message.

Carl E. Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, said the coal industry would do its best to produce the additional coal needed for the President's proposed shift from oil and gas. But he added that it would require some commitment that mines would not be forced to shut down once the immediate crisis is over.

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, offered "strong endorsement" of the President's proposals and added that one additional step not mentioned by Nixon would be to authorize the resumption of offshore drilling in California's Santa Barbara Channel, where production was suspended after a 1969 oil spill.

Students could help during fuel shortage

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond says student power can help solve the energy crisis.

In a speech prepared for the Missouri State Teachers Association conference here Thursday, the governor said schools can teach students ways of conserving fuel resources.

"The Missouri Energy Council has announced recently a poster contest which we hope will encourage conservation of energy by bringing young people's talents and viewpoints to bear on this serious problem," Bond said.

He said students are being asked to "illustrate a specific message about the energy shortage or show a positive approach to conservation of our existing energy supply."

Bond said he hoped students will bring home to their parents and families information on energy conservation, thus helping to educate the public on the problem.

"A child's optimistic innocence often provides new insight into complex problems," he said.

"One simple way to conserve fuel, and perhaps lives, is to slow down when driving," he said. "It is important that our driver education classes instruct our youth in economical, as well as safe, driving habits."

President's proposals at a glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here at-a-glance are President Nixon's legislative proposals to conserve energy.

TRANSPORTATION

—Allow transportation agencies to adjust carrier schedules and service points after summary hearings.

—Lower speed limits on the nation's highways to 50 miles an hour.

POWER

—Open the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve in California to increased oil production.

—Impose "energy conservation fees or taxes," perhaps on the consumption of natural gas or the excessive use of electricity.

—Authorize the Federal Power Commission to suspend price regulation on new natural gas.

—Authorize the Atomic Energy Commission to grant without public hearings temporary operating licenses lasting up to 18 months for atomic power plants.

TIME

—Extend Daylight Savings Time throughout the year.

POLLUTION

—Allow the Environmental Protection Agency to exempt for one year power plants and factories from air and water quality laws on a case-by-case basis.

—Exempt such federal action from the National Environmental Policy Act, which requires prior preparation and review of environmental impact statements.

BUSINESS

—Curtail outdoor electrical advertising and ornamental lighting.

—Reduce commercial operating hours.

RATIONING

—Develop standby plans to ration gasoline and home heating oil if necessary.

Pessimism expressed by coal operators

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — In the midst of a national energy crisis which should gladden the hearts of coal operators, an air of pessimism hangs over the Pike County fields, long the chief underground producer in Kentucky.

Instead of gearing up to supply huge quantities of fossil fuel to eager buyers, small operators in the Appalachian mountains talk in terms of going out of business by next March.

That month is important. It is the deadline for all mines to obtain certain permissible equipment under the 1969 federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act.

"We can't afford to throw out equipment and get new machinery," said Henry Bailey of the Raccoon Coal Co. "And there are so many things against us."

Such as:
—A 4 per cent Kentucky severance tax on extraction of coal, implemented last year.

—A tremendous increase in the cost of workmen's compensation because the 1972 Legislature decided to make the coal industry pay more of the black lung benefits, a cost which had been borne mostly by nonrelated industries.

—An occasional state crackdown on overweight coal trucks.

—A gradual tightening of state restrictions on surface mining to protect the environment.

"If I knew the coal industry would stabilize, I'd walk out the door right now and get into it," said Everett Brown, the Pikeville district supervisor for the state Mines and Minerals Department. "But it slides up and down too much."

"We're mining people here, it's in our bloodstream," Brown said, recalling his 15 years as a miner.

Brown declines any comment on sensitive state issues such as the severance tax and strip mining curtailment. But he is blunt about the federal safety act.

"I said four years ago when that act was passed that it's the beginning of the end of small truck mines and I'm repeating it now," Brown said.

Converting to permissible equipment is expensive. Brown said, often costing as much as the original machinery.

Small mines, in contrast to the few huge rail mines here which dump the coal onto freight cars at the site, truck the coal to certain loading points.

Xmas decorations

We may be getting old fashioned and stuffy, but by crackey, it's too early to put up the downtown Christmas decorations!

It used to be traditional for public decorations to go up immediately after Thanksgiving. The idea, reasonable enough, was that the seasons might as well come in their regular sequence. Thanksgiving first, then Christmas.

But on a scale of one to 10 for economic clout, Thanksgiving ranks 0½ and Christmas rings the bell.

So in recent years the promotion of Christmas has all but buried that quiet day which Americans have traditionally set aside to give thanks for the successful harvest.

Of course, we don't have a fall harvest anymore, and nobody works in the field for his own sustenance. Today we use money instead of produce. Christmas is the money holiday and Thanksgiving smacks of earlier, more primitive values. Now we worship the dollar more than the imagery of fingers in the soil and pumpkins in the wheelbarrow.

Nonetheless, it is not necessary to get the yule trimmings hung all over our public places before the heat of Indian Summer has even gone.

Too early, boys, too early. Having the decorations up this soon won't do that much (if anything) for commerce, and it certainly offends the sensibilities of many. By mid-December people will be so used to the decorations that they might as well not be up. (Columbia Daily Tribune)

'Mercy' killer freed

A New Jersey man has been acquitted of the "mercy killing" of his brother because of "temporary insanity."

Last June Lester Zygmanski carried a concealed shotgun into a hospital where his brother, George, lay, paralyzed from the neck down by a motorcycle accident. He shot his brother in the head after telling him he was there "to end your pain."

Zygmanski's attorney argued that his client's power to reason was "overwhelmed by events." The state vainly tried to convince the jury that murder, after all, is still murder.

There are frightening implications in the Zygmanski acquittal, indicative of trends in our society toward making euthanasia respectable. After all, we did it for abortion didn't we?

A dangerous game, this playing God.

House should vote bill of impeachment

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON — The time has come, much as a long time admirer regrets to say it, to proceed with the impeachment and trial of Richard Nixon. Nothing else will clear the poisonous air and restore a sense of domestic tranquility.

To avoid misunderstanding: I am not urging or predicting that Nixon vote for conviction and removal from office. I am saying simply, after long and sad reflection, that the House of Representatives should perform a service to the country, and perhaps to Nixon as well, by voting a bill for impeachment.

That recommendation comes hard. I have known this president for 25 years, supported him, defended him, praised his general philosophy while criticizing particular actions, and I happen to like him as a human being. Impeachment is our country's last political resort. It is a course to be taken only at a point when no other course will suffice. We are at that point now.

Resignation is not the answer. It is politically inconceivable that the President would resign under circumstances that would transfer the White House to the Democratic party under a President Carl Albert. But even if Gerald Ford had been confirmed as vice president, thus assuring a Republican succession, the President's resignation would come as one more unilateral act on his part. He alone would be controlling the sequence of events. The fact of Ford's presidency would then be Nixon's sole responsibility. If the most powerful office in the free world is to change hands, under the traumatic conditions that now obtain, the change should reflect the solemn deliberate will of the Senate.

Two weeks ago I said it was nonsense to suppose the Senate would vote to convict Nixon and thus to remove him from office. That column was written just as news was breaking of the firing of Archibald Cox and the removal of Elliot Richardson and William French Smith. The story of the two missing tapes had not transpired.

It seems evident that for many Americans, a breaking point abruptly has been reached. No action that Nixon himself might take — no speech, no statement, no explanation through his aides — could quell the national doubt and distrust. His one chance to salvage his administration, it seems to me, now lies in submitting his conduct to the formal judgement of the Senate. His acquittal would put an end to the obsessive attacks; his conviction equally would permit the nation to resume a normal course.

A resolution of impeachment, if it is to accomplish the desired end, should cover the whole gamut of charges bruited about in the past two years. The President should be indicted by the House, in effect, for criminal misconduct in the ITT case, the milk deal, the Ellsberg affair, the Watergate burglary and cover-up, the improvements to presidential property in Florida and California, and for general obstruction of justice in the matter of the tapes.

The trial of such a comprehensive impeachment would tie up the Senate for months. It would take the chief justice away from the Supreme Court for this same period. So dramatic an event would exhaust an already weary country and compound the partisan turmoil.

But there would be this tremendous advantage: We could look to the one thing that is most desperately needed now, and that is an ending. Trials are finite. The day would come when the Senate at long last voted to convict or to acquit. In one ultimate tick of the clock on the Senate wall, it would all be over.

No such finality is in prospect now. The President is a man under siege. He is still capable of governing, but his own blunders have cost him heavily in terms of public confidence and respect.

Retaping for the record

WASHINGTON — The solution to the two missing presidential tapes is simple. The President should do them over again with the same cast. It would be no problem for the White House to rent a recording studio and hire a producer to make tapes as good as the original.

This is how it would go.

Buchwald

PRODUCER: Okay, Mr. President, do you have your script? Now on this tape you're getting a call from John Mitchell. It's right after Watergate and Mr. Mitchell is giving you a fill-in. Mr. Mitchell, you hold the phone over there at that mike. Are we ready? Roll 'em. This is the Nixon-Mitchell telephone conversation tape one. Go.

MITCHELL: Hi, Mr. President. John Mitchell here.

NIXON: Hello, John. How's Martha since you tied her up in Newport Beach?

PRODUCER: Cut, Mr. President, you sound too relaxed. Now you have to remember, this is right after Watergate, and it looks like the Committee for the Re-Election of the President has been involved. Could you get some anxiety in your voice?

NIXON: I never show any anxiety.

PRODUCER: Well, pretend you were just awakened or something. We want to make this thing sound real. Okay, roll it again, tape two.

MITCHELL: Do you want to start from the top or where I tell the President I can't tell him anything about Watergate because it will only upset him?

PRODUCER: All right, start from there.

MITCHELL: Mr. President, I know something you don't know.

PRESIDENT: What is it?

MITCHELL: I'm not going to tell you because you'll go through the roof.

PRESIDENT: But as President, shouldn't I know everything you know? It isn't nice to keep secrets from me, John.

MITCHELL: Someday you'll thank me for not telling you about it.

PRESIDENT: Why on earth did you bring it up, if you can't tell me?

MITCHELL: In the future I may have to testify that I didn't tell you about it and I want it on the record.

PRESIDENT: Well, what did you call for then?

MITCHELL: Just to tell you I couldn't tell you anything about the Watergate break-in or who was involved.

PRESIDENT: I appreciate that. And, John, have a nice day.

PRODUCER: Beautiful. You guys were perfect. All right, let's do the second tape. Where's John Dean?

ASSISTANT: He's sitting over there being guarded by two Secret Service men. He says he doesn't want to do it.

PRODUCER: Why doesn't he want to do it?

ASSISTANT: He says he has a contract with Columbia Records, and he can't make tapes for anyone else.

PRODUCER: Get him over here to this mike.

DEAN: I can't read my script with these handcuffs on.

PRODUCER: Take off the handcuffs. Now, John, the presidency of the entire United States is at stake. How you read these lines could affect the history of the country. Do you understand?

DEAN: I guess so. But this script doesn't sound like me.

PRODUCER: Who's going to know, John? You're in show biz.

DEAN: The President didn't say these things to me.

PRODUCER: Look, John. Don't worry 'about what the President said to you. Let him worry about his own lines. Okay, let's roll. Everyone in the studio, quiet. Tape one Nixon-Dean in Oval Office alone.

PRESIDENT: I'm glad to see you, John. Do you have anything of importance to tell me?

DEAN: We need a million dollars to cover up the Watergate scandal.

PRESIDENT: But that would be dishonest.

PRODUCER: Cut, Mr. President, would you show more surprise in your voice when Dean brings up the million dollars?

The explosion of locomotive No. 510, of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, at 10:35 o'clock Sunday night, rocked homes in southwest Sedalia, and could be heard for a radius of 10 miles. Fireman Gerbert Max Twenter, 48, Pilot Grove, was killed and Engineer Charles V. Perry of Boonville was seriously injured.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The discovery of a White House "enemies list" last June brought denials that the catalogued "enemies" had been marked for government harassment. The list was intended merely as a social guide, it was said, for issuing White House invitations.

The tut tuts from the White House, however, have now been exploded by the American Civil Liberties Union, which has been investigating what happened to those on the famous list. Probing questionnaires were sent to 189 "enemies" and answered by 95.

Although the final findings are still under lock and key in the office of project director Doug Leas, we have obtained a preliminary report:

The Internal Revenue Service, despite all its denials, has pursued an unusual number of President Nixon's "enemies." Some 28 per cent of the replies reported tax audits, a far higher percentage than the national average for similar time periods and income brackets.

The tax victims included Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., a potential Democratic presidential contender; Common Cause Chairman John Gardner; New York Post editor James Wechsler; and United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock; to name a few. Noted Mondale: "I have no knowledge, of course, whether the IRS audit was related to the fact that I was on that list." Gardner took the same attitude. "We are so completely open in operations," he said, "we have not given the matter further thought."

Some 19 per cent reported their phones had been tapped, and another 12 per cent thought it likely. Among those who felt they were under electronic surveillance were Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., and Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., both vigorous Nixon critics. Ms. Abzug, for example, heard a third voice cut in on a telephone conversation she was having with Assemblyman Al Blumenthal in 1972. She "called in a private investigator who confirmed that my phone was being tapped," she reported.

A full 23 per cent were subjected to federal investigations, other than tax probes, by the FBI or other agencies. Former Ambassador to India John Kenneth Galbraith reported one of his speeches had been monitored by "Army intelligence agents." Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., was investigated by the FBI after he got copies of the Media, Pa., FBI files.

Smaller percentages reported burglaries (though unsure whether the government committed them), "punitive enforcement actions," mail interception, corporate contract problems and (in the case of some groups) infiltration by Nixon agents.

Some of the harassment was more unique. For example, Walter Heller, a former economic adviser to President Kennedy, was supposed to be re-elected to the board of the Federal National Mortgage Association. Heller learned that the White House requested he be asked to "step down." Heller, burdened with the job anyway, happily complied.

Heller suggested there was a "remote possibility" that his son, also named Walter Heller, had been turned down for a National Science Foundation grant renewal because "the sins of the father were being visited on the son." He noted:

Merry-go-round

What happened to the 'enemies' list

"It's the kind of thing one can't help thinking, given the mentality that lies behind the list."

Former Los Angeles Times reporter Stuart Loory told how he had written a personality sketch which irritated Dr. Henry Kissinger. The annoyed Kissinger called in Loory's boss and told him, so Loory reported: "I don't care who you send to cover the White House, but I never want to see Stuart Loory again."

Educator George Fischer, of Chicago, reported his astonishment at finding one of his letters to a relative had been opened and stamped: "Opened by Mistake by the Treasury Department." Fischer also complained that he had been audited every year since 1969 and he suspected his phone is tapped.

"I feel," he replied to the ACLU questionnaire, "that the Administration has no doubt violated the Bill of Rights on many counts. My own personal rights, if not violated, have been abused."

The ACLU tallies show the government came down hardest on blacks, newsmen, academic types and, more particularly, on "enemies" living in or near New York City, Washington and Boston — in other words, the "Eastern Establishment."

FOOTNOTE: I was one of the 95 "enemies" who answered the ACLU query. In my case, federal agents have followed me, a federal grand jury has investigated my sources, my long-distance phone records have been seized, my reporters have been harassed and, in one case, arrested.

Dirty trick on people

As Pettis County Re-Elect The President chairman and Republican city chairman, I just say it was refreshing to see Thursday's reprint of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat editorial criticizing the disrespect shown our President by the news media.

First let me say that if President Nixon or any of his workers are guilty of any wrongdoing, I certainly do not condone it. Secondly, it has long been common knowledge that local, state, and yes, especially our national government, has been the private playground for those in control.

Reflect back at how the legislators hired their wives, relatives, and friends to pad the payrolls. Reflect back at the boondoggles that have been handed out at the taxpayers' expense. Reflect back at the special interest legislation that has been passed year after year. Reflect back at the skeletons that could be rattled in the previous administrations. Then tell me what gives this self-appointed group of investigators (who need to heal themselves) the right to crucify the President.

The dirty tricks they are complaining about are what they have made politics to be, and, for the most part, is between the politicians. This vendetta to destroy the Republican Party through the President so they can get back in power is a dirty trick on the people of the United States and the world, for they are on a collision course of Rule or Ruin.

Look what they have done to our dollar abroad. Look what they have done to our world image. While they play their game, they could throw us into a world depression. If they didn't like getting beat, why didn't they take their lumps and go back to work and develop some good legislation that would control this political monster they have fostered down through the years? Why wash our dirty linen out in the open for the world to see if it isn't another dirty political trick? I would suggest they get back to work to build a better United States of America for the American people and for the world rather than to work to build a party and to hell with the people.

Al Pacino moves from Mafioso role to that of cop

Cop? robber? actor.

Al Pacino, who just finished a role as an honest cop in "Serpico," flashes a relaxed smile while talking about resuming his Mafia role in the upcoming Godfather II. Pacino plays Frank Serpico in the film account of an honest cop who campaigned against corruption in the New York City Police Department. Pacino claims that portraying such opposite roles in succession poses no real additional acting problems. (AP)

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Pacino, who would rather act on stage but is best known for taking over a Mafia family when the don died in "The Godfather," is now playing an honest cop in the movie "Serpico."

The film is about a real person, Frank Serpico, deals with equally real corruption in the New York City Police Department and was shot this summer in New York, with full cooperation from the city and the police department.

Out of a $4 million budget, plus such thoroughness that 5,000 actors were auditioned for 107 speaking parts, comes a movie that producer Martin Bregman predicts will be as big as "On the Waterfront."

He says, "It's the same kind of fight — one man who couldn't accept a system that was corrupt." As a New York City policeman, Serpico refused to accept money from gambling and narcotics operations, as the cops he worked with were doing, and he also did everything he could to make police and city bigwigs aware of the practice.

Bergman, who decided to make the picture as soon as he read Peter Maas's first chapter for his book, "Serpico," doesn't put the film in a cops and robbers category. "There's no chase in this. Nobody gets killed. We're telling about an honest man who felt he had to forge ahead; one man has to carry the spear. The French Connection was a cops and robbers film, heavily romanticized, bigger than life.

"Frank wasn't a supercop. He didn't shoot it out with Joe Gallo. He was an average guy who couldn't accept a system that was corrupt. He couldn't get any officials to listen to him and he took one last, stupid shot that shouldn't have worked,

— but it did work for him — he went to the New York Times. At that point he felt he would be killed anyway and he wanted to get it on the record. They've uncovered larger corruption in the Police Department, but it's the first time a cop ever testified against another cop."

Bergman may be proud that crews took trees out and replanted them later, giving the movie a spare, winter look, but for Al Pacino whatever unavoidable circumstances forced the movie to be shot during a New York heat wave gave him his biggest problem. "The makeup man put some special stuff on us so our faces wouldn't sweat. It's very refreshing and it dries you. He comes around with a rag just before they shoot. It's very difficult when you're getting prepared to do a scene and a guy is coming around to wipe your face off.

"One time I was on a roof in winter clothes, gloves and hat and I sat on a chair to rest and it sunk into the tar, at an angle, and it was at the edge of the roof. But we got through those things, didn't we?"

Pacino warns that he doesn't have much to say in an interview, then goes on to say a great deal, charmingly.

Pacino, 33, has made four films, the first being "Panic in Needle Park." Next he'll be in "Godfather II," a sequel to "The Godfather" which will include flashbacks of the life of Don Vito Corleone, played by Robert de Niro instead of Brando.

MU defense offers OU stiff challenge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are some reasons suggesting that the pressure is on Oklahoma for its game against Missouri Saturday.

The Sooners are 3-0 in the Big Eight, MU, 3-1.

A loss to Missouri not only would drop OU to second in the conference, but it would put them against the wall with tough dates remaining against Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma State.

After Saturday, the Tigers have the most difficult part of their schedule behind them. They finish the regular season against cellar-dwelling Iowa State and KU.

With a thought given to MU's stinginess in allowing opponents to gather points—an average of 9.1 per game—Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said Wednesday:

"We have a great challenge for our offense, especially our offensive line. The great difference in this game is right there. This game has never been a high-scoring game. I don't think this one is going to be much different."

Missouri's Al Onofrio hopes to see his team's emotions peak on Saturday, Wednesday, he said, was "a very average practice. . . . You don't feel the pressure now. . . . You don't want to get over-enthusiastic because you don't want to play your game Monday or Tuesday in practice."

The rest of Colorado's quarterback corps—sophomore David Williams and senior Joe Duenas—continues getting extensive work because of the question mark hovering over sophomore Clyde Crutcher. The hamstring pull he suffered last week showed some improvement, but not enough to tell whether he'd be ready to play against Kansas at Lawrence.

Much of the emphasis at Lawrence is on the running game following a disappointing ground attack against Oklahoma State that netted only 30 yards.

Coach Vince Gibson figures his Kansas State team and its next opponent, Oklahoma State, have something in common:

"They could be easily defeated right now, but they've had the misfortune of doing what we've been doing—making too many turnovers." He adds the Wildcats "need to go down there and make things happen. We've got to quit worrying about making mistakes and start making some plays."

The OSU coaches have moved junior college transfer Calvin Miller ahead of Carl Devorce at one of the starting defensive tackle spots. "We're going to need both of them on our defensive scheme for K-State," Coach Jim Stanley said.

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne has a feeling Iowa State will be using man-to-man coverage against his receivers Saturday. If so, he predicts the Husker receivers will do well against it.

In personnel changes at Ames, Bruce Fling will be sharing his safety position with freshman Jerry Jaksich and fullback Larry Marquardt was promoted to the second team ahead of Moses Moore.

New Jersey says girls can play Little League

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey has become the first state in the nation to order Little League baseball teams to permit girls to play.

"The institution of Little League is as American as the hotdog and apple pie," Hearing Examiner Sylvia Pressler of the state's Civil Rights Division declared Wednesday. "There is no reason why that part of Americana should be withheld from girls."

"We must start somewhere in reversing the trends in this society. Girls should be treated no differently than boys."

The ruling, which covers only New Jersey teams, followed a complaint by a Hoboken girl against Little League Baseball, Inc. of Williamsport, Pa., after the girl was ejected from a team whose charter had been threatened by the national organization.

The complaint by Maria Pepe, 12, was prepared by the National Organization of Women.

Attorneys for Little League Baseball said they would appeal Mrs. Pressler's ruling to the Appellate Division of Superior Court, the state's second highest tribunal, and to the State Supreme Court if necessary.

Miss Pepe's complaint was filed in 1972. Despite her victory, she is now too old to try out for her team, the Hoboken Young Dems.

Richest event ever

World Golf tourney underway minus four of game's big names

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's here. And Gary Player. And Bruce Crampton and Masters champ Tommy Aaron and the Young Lions Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw and tough old Sam Snead.

National champions from some 20 countries around the globe are on hand to make a run at one-half million dollars in prize money, the richest golf tournament the world has ever known.

But the brand-new World Open, which offers $100,000 to the winner of the two-week tournament that began its inaugural run today, is in a slightly embarrassing position. The winner will be billed as the World Champion.

But he'll get that title without the necessity of defeating perhaps the three top players alive today — Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Lee Trevino. U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller also is on the sidelines, suffering from influenza.

The absence of those four — collectively, they've won the U.S. British and Canadian Opens, the PGA, 12 other titles and more than $1 million in prize money this year — has taken some of the gloss and glitter off the event that admittedly is looking for a place alongside the game's Big Four championships. It's sort of like having a Super Bowl in which the American Football Conference champion doesn't appear. Or a World Series without a National League representative.

Even with the absence of some of the game's top players and the lack of national television coverage — Hughes Sports Network cancelled out some time ago — the tournament has drawn an extremely impressive field.

Among the top Americans are such veterans as Palmer, Billy Casper and Gene Littler, youthful standouts Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw and the incredible Snead, still dangerous at the age of 61.

The foreign threat is very strong and it's among the non-Americans that the likely favorite rests. That role probably would go to either Player or the sturdy Crampton.

Player, the little South African who has swept all the world's major titles in his career, apparently is fully recovered from surgery that slowed his progress much of the year.

He made a run at the title in the Hartford Open, won the Southern Open the next week then later took his fifth title in the Piccadilly World Match Play championship in England.

"Since Hartford, I've played really quite well," the muscular little man said.

Crampton—until Weiskopf made his mid-season rush—was one of the standouts on the American tour all season. He won four times, was in position to take a half-dozen other titles, went past the $1 million mark in career earnings and ranks second only to Nicklaus on the current money-winning list.

A strong performance here could make him only the second foreign player in history to take the American money-winning title. He'd like nothing better.

Pilot Grove girls

defeat Otterville

OTTERVILLE — Pilot Grove jumped out to an early lead in a Cooper County Athletic Association contest Wednesday night and was never threatened, beating the Otterville girls' basketball varsity, 54-36.

Sheryl Schlotzhauer paced with winners with 22 points while Rene Watring rang up 17 tallies for the Eagles.

Otterville, now 0-2 on the season after an opening loss to New Franklin Monday, plays again Tuesday at Tipton.

'Cats open with Warsaw

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARSAW — Warsaw will open its 1973-74 basketball slate at home Friday night hosting Skyline (Urbana, Mo.), in a non-league game.

Warsaw finished just above .500 last season with a 14-13 overall record and was 4-4 in Kaysinger Conference play.

This will be the first game for the Wildcats under the leadership of Larry Thompson, who moved into the head coaching post after coaching at South Callaway (Mokane, Mo.) and Eugene, Mo.

Skyline, one of the top Class-S teams each year in Missouri State High School Activities Association regional tournament play, will field a young club. And coach Dale Kimberling may start as many as three freshmen.

Last year the Tigers posted a 24-4 record, with three of their losses coming against Polk County Conference foe Morrisville.

Morrisville wound up the season with a 26-6 mark and missed by one game of making it to the state Class-S semifinals in Columbia, when Forsyth, the eventual state champion, upended them.

Two changes on S-C Tigers' cage schedule

Smith-Cotton High School athletic director Bob Edmondson has announced two changes in the Tigers' basketball schedule for the coming season.

The Bengals were scheduled to open the season with their annual four-team invitational tourney on Nov. 29. Due to the long distance that will be traveled by St. Louis Central, the two-night event has been pushed back to Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

In the opening game, Columbia Hickman will take on Springfield Glendale at 6:30 p.m. S-C clashes with Central at 8 p.m.

The winners will meet Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. for the championship. The consolation game between the two-opening-round losers will get under way at 6:30 p.m.

The other change announced by Edmondson is the cancellation of the Feb. 16 non-conference, road game at Moberly.

Rock Bridge dumps Owls in NCC play

Columbia Rock Bridge, in its first year of interscholastic football competition, took advantage of eight Marshall turnovers — four fumbles and four interceptions — and upset the Owls, 27-13, in a key North Central Conference game in Columbia Wednesday night.

The loss, which was the second league setback suffered by the Owls, dropped them into second place in the conference with a 4-2 slate. Rock Bridge stayed alive with the win, and can still gain a share of the loop championship.

KU, Buffs kickoff set up to 1 p.m.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kickoff time for Saturdays Kansas-Colorado football game at Lawrence has been changed from 1:30 p.m. to 1 p.m. CST.

The Big Eight Conference headquarters in Kansas City said today the change was made to fit into telecasting schedules.

The American Broadcasting Co. will carry the game on a regional network.

Rock Bridge, Marshall and Chillicothe can all tie for the title, if Trenton defeats Chillicothe Saturday night and Rock Bridge wins its loop finale against Kirksville, Nov. 17.

In other area football action Wednesday night, Carrollton handed Higginsville its second conference loss of the campaign in Carrollton, 7-6.

Higginsville was tied with Boonville for second place in the Missouri River Valley Conference going into the game with 3-1-1 mark. Carrollton had won three of five MRVC contests prior to the match-up.

Many key area games are on tap Friday and Saturday night

Feaver eliminated

BILLINGHAM, England — Grover Reid of Greenville, S.C., eliminated John Feaver of Britain 6-2, 6-2 in the second round of an international tennis tournament, while Julie Heldman of Houston, Tex., whipped Britain's Francis Taylor 6-0, 6-3.

in area football. In the Mid-State Conference, league-leading Jefferson City Helias can nail down the conference championship with a victory over Lebanon. However, a loss by the Crusaders coupled with a victory by Mexico over Rolla, would give Mexico and Helias a co-championship.

In I-70 Conference play, Santa Fe (Alma), which downed Oak Grove, 12-6, last week, can win the league title with a victory over St. Paul's (Concordia) Friday night. Oak Grove is still in the running and can earn a share of the championship if St. Paul's upsets Santa Fe. Grove wins its loop finale with Sweet Springs.

Over in the West Central Conference, which saw Clinton upset league-leading Harrisonville last week, El Dorado Springs is looking for some help from Knob Noster. El Dorado Springs is the only team left in the league that can win a share of the championship with Harrisonville. But to do that, El Dorado Springs has to defeat Clinton, and Knob Noster needs to knock off Harrisonville.

In a frantic effort to get to a loose puck, St. Louis Blues' defenseman Bob Paradise (6) upends Atlanta Flames' rightwing Pierre Plante (16) in the first

Mike Wagner tops NFL pass interception list

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Wagner loves being in the right place at the right time — mainly when the ball is coming toward him.

The Pittsburgh Steelers' safety had six interceptions for the entire 1972 National Football league season. It galloped him a little bit that Jack Ham, a line-backer on the Steelers, had seven.

Wagner is making up for that in a hurry. He's already got six interceptions this season, tops in the league according to NFL statistics released today. And Ham is nowhere to be seen on the thievery list.

The only problem for Wagner is that another teammate, safety Glen Edwards, has taken up the challenge. He and Levi Johnson of the Detroit Lions have five apiece.

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson, held in check last Sunday by New Orleans, still commands the American Conference in rushing with 1,104 yards, well ahead of runner-up Larry Csonka's 659 for Miami. The National Conference leader is still Dallas' Calvin Hill with 701 yards.

The league continues to rate John Hadl of Los Angeles and Ken Stabler of Oakland as the passing leaders in the AFC and AFC respectively. In receiving, Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia tops the NFC and the league with 41 for 608 yards. Fred Willis, whose game-winning touchdown against Baltimore enabled Houston to snap an 18-game losing streak, is the AFC leader with 37 receptions.

Other NFL leaders include Nick Mike-Mayer, the Atlanta place-kicker whose five field goals carried the Falcons past Los Angeles 15-13 and gave him the league scoring lead with 74 points, and Jerrel Wilson of Kansas City, the top punter with a 44.9-yard average.

Flames have to settle for 2-2 tie with Blues

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Flames drilled the St. Louis defense for 31 shots Wednesday night but had to settle for a 2-2 National Hockey League tie.

"You may lose some games when you have over 30 shots but not many," growled Flames Coach Bernie "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion. "They got 18 (shots) and we got 31 and all we get is a tie."

The tie snapped Atlanta's five-game winning streak but Geoffrion said he was satisfied with the one point that comes with a tie.

"I'm happy with the one point and I'm sure their coach is," he said. "I know I'm always happy with one point at any house on the road."

Wane Merrick of St. Louis scored his fifth goal of the season midway through the final period to give the Blues the tie, the first ever between the two teams.

Atlanta had taken the lead less than two minutes earlier when Larry Romanchych slammed in his fourth goal of the year.

After a scoreless first period, St. Louis got the first goal of the night from Gary Unger with 3:50 gone in the second period.

Atlanta tied it up a short time later when Romanchych took a pass from Bob Leiter and bounced in a shot from close range.

Merrick slammed in his game-tying goal from about 30 feet past Atlanta's Dan Bouchard, the league's second leading goalie with a goals-against average of 1.29.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Elon College in North Carolina, with 185 points and 11 first place votes, remained the No. 1 team in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Division I rankings today.

Rams drop Gordon

LOS ANGELES — Veteran wide receiver Dick Gordon of the Los Angeles Rams was dropped from the National Football League club because of a verbal fight with an assistant coach and acquired by the Green Bay Packers on waivers.

week ago. Elon's margin over Langston was only six points in the voting of a panel of NAIA coaches. Both teams have 9-0 records.

Abilene Christian College jumped from fourth to third the past week with 156 points, and Howard Payne of Texas moved into fourth with 141.

Behind the leaders were Carson-Newman with 105 points, No. 5; Troy, Ala., State, 81, No. 6; Emporia, Kan., State, 69, No. 7; Grambling, La., 64, No. 8; Wisconsin Lacrosse, 53, No. 9; and Henderson, Ark., State, 51, No. 10.

Howard University, tied for fifth a week ago, and Central Washington, ninth, both tumbled out of the Top Ten.

Northwestern of Iowa continued to hold first place in the Division II rankings with 184 points and 11 first place votes, and Glenville, W. Va., State, with 177 points, clung to second.

William Jewell of Missouri took the No. 3 ranking with 163 points after being rated fourth last week. Carthage, Wis., and Fisk, Tenn., each with 100 points, were tied for fourth.

The other clubs in the Top Ten are Linfield, Ore., sixth, with 84 points; Carroll, Mont., 78 and seventh; Missouri Valley, 76 and eighth; Westminster, Pa., 71 and ninth; and Millikin, Ill., 69 and 10th.

Jackson remains top rusher

Davis takes over total offense lead in Big 8

KANSAS CITY (AP) — With the rushing threat he presents, Oklahoma's sophomore quarterback, Steve Davis, has jumped into the lead in the Big Eight's total-offense category.

Davis has picked up 636 rushing yards—22 more than he has passed for—giving him an average gain of 7.1 yards each play. It places him a bare decimal point ahead of Nebraska quarter-back Dave Humm, who outshines Davis in the passing department but is minus 12 yards in rushing attempts.

Davis also leads the scoring column with 60 points in seven games.

Still the leading rusher is Kansas State's Isaac Jackson. In eight games he has netted 909 yards, averaging 5.4 yards per carry and 114 yards per game. Oklahoma's Joe Washington is second with 780 yards, but his per-carry average is seven yards. Washington overtook Iowa State's Mike Strahan, now third with 758 yards.

The Kansas passing combination of David Jaynes-to-Emmett Edwards continues to top the leading passers and receivers. Jaynes' 1,540 yards in eight games compares with Humm's 1,235 in seven.

Edwards has snared 35 passes for 558 yards. Kansas State's Henry Childs, second, has caught 27 for 462.

The conference's leading punt-returner, John Moseley of Missouri, has brought back 13 for 211 yards, a 16-yard average. Kansas' Bruce Adams follows with 245 yards on 21 returns, 12 yards per carry.

Colorado's Rich Bland is the leading pass thief—five interceptions in eight games. Iowa State's Willie Jones is averaging 25 yards a carry on kick-off returns to lead that category and teammate Tom Goedjen is the top kick-scorer. His 56 points is just two points ahead of Missouri's Greg Hill.

Five punters are averaging better than 40 yards. They are K-State quarterback Steve Grogan, who has kicked three for a 50-yard average; Iowa State's Scott Bradley, 40 for 41.5; Brent Longwell of Nebraska, six for 41.5; Oklahoma State's Cliff Parsley, 16 for 40.5 and Colorado's Stan Koleski, 17 for 40.3.

Ends playing career

Delvecchio takes over Wings

DETROIT (AP) — Alex Delvecchio, the last vestige of the glory years of the Detroit Red Wings, has ended his illustrious 23-year playing career and "joined the ulcer department" of the National Hockey League team.

The 41-year-old Red Wing captain, who has scored more points in the NHL than anyone except former teammate Gordie Howe, was named coach Wednesday night in place of Ted Garvin.

A league rule prohibits him from being a player-coach.

The announcement was made at a hastily called news conference following Detroit's 4-1 loss to the Philadelphia Flyers, the Wings' ninth defeat in 12 games.

Garvin was fired after only a 12-game trial as coach. Under him Detroit has gotten off to the poorest start in its 48-year history and is mired in last place in the East Division with a 2-9-1 record.

"I think Garvin is a coach, but this is a business and we're not winning," said General Manager Ned Harkness, who fired Garvin and hired Delvecchio after conferring with team owner Bruce A. Norris.

"The yardstick of success is measured by wins," Harkness said. "A change had to be made. We owe it to the people who buy tickets. We can't keep spinning our wheels."

The appointment might be seen as a move to still the bitter rumblings of fans and media over the team's front-office turmoil.

Detroit, which finished first eight of nine years from 1949 through 1957 and won four Stanley Cup championships in the same period, has made the playoffs only once in the last seven seasons.

Much of the blame, be it just or unjust, has been laid on Harkness and Jim Bishop, executive vice president.

One "Impeach Ned Harkness" sign was hung in Olympia Stadium at Wednesday's game and there was another reading, "Impeach Ned Harkness and Jim Bishop."

"Hopefully they hired me for my abilities to coach this team and not to pacify the fans," said Delvecchio, the seventh man to enter the revolving door of coaches in the last four years.

Delvecchio, who will be 42 next month, called his appointment, "the greatest thing that's happened in my career."

"We picked Alex because of his leadership," Harkness said. "He is a statesman in hockey. He has the charisma to turn the club around."

Delvecchio said he was offered the job about 2 p.m. Wednesday, some three hours before Harkness said he asked Garvin to step down.

Garvin, who was behind the bench at the game, has been asked to remain in the organization, according to Norris.

He was coach of Detroit's Port Huron farm club of the International Hockey League before being appointed to the Red Wing job last April 24th as the replacement for fired Johnny Wilson.

Blue Birds return talent, experience

By BOB SHACKELFORD Staff Sports Writer

COLE CAMP — Bob Farrington begins his seventh season as head coach of the Blue Birds of Cole Camp. A graduate of Missouri Valley College at Marshall, Farrington is the "old man" in terms of service in the Kaysinger Conference.

Coming off the 72-73 season with a 3-5 conference record and 12-14 overall, the Bluebirds return the nucleus of a contender; the scoring punch is present, and, as usual, the defense will be tough.

Four seniors, all regular or part-time starters last season, will see a lot of action: Ken Weymuth (6-0) a guard who averaged 7.1 ppg last year; Harry Goosen (6-5) with a 10.8 scoring average and eight rebounds per contest; forward Delbert Brandes (6-2), and guard Chris Yeager (5-10).

Other varsity letter-winners from last year's campaign vying for starting berths are 6-4 Greg Ives, 6-0 senior Danny Schnell, 5-10 junior guard Robert Miesner, and 6-2 forward Alan Duensing.

Charley Cordes, a 6-0 junior, will be expected to add punch to the Cole Camp attack.

When asked to name a starting lineup, Coach Farrington answered, "There's no way I can. All the kids mentioned have a shot at a starting position." This would be a problem most coaches would like to have and is an indication of the depth the club will have.

LaMonte and Smithton were Farrington's picks to battle it out for the title, but he added that he thought the balance in the loop this year was better than it has been in several years.

A final comment by Coach Farrington, "Last year, there were four teams that were fairly equal, but seemed to be a great distance from the bottom five teams. I do not believe at this point in the season we will have that this year with the possible exception of LaMonte and Smithton."

"I'm not by nature an optimistic coach on paper early in the season," he went on to say, "but I do feel, even with the loss of Russell Case, our club is a strong third and will push the top two clubs I mentioned before the season is over."

Restructuring of nation's security industry not easy

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How does one go about restructuring the nation's sprawling security industry into a modern, centralized model of efficiency?

Not easily, as it turns out. Efforts toward such a central market have raised a long list of interlocking issues that have surrounded the whole subject with controversy.

Almost everybody favors the idea of a central market linking the separate exchanges and markets into one coordinated network. But when it comes down to the specifics of who will take what role in that market, agreement has been scarce on Wall Street and in Washington.

Here is a capsule look at some of the major questions that remain to be resolved:

ACCESS: One group, led by the government, wants access to the central market for everyone in the industry. This would include specialists, who match orders auction-style on the exchanges, and dealers, who make markets by buying and selling from their own accounts. It would include all the exchanges and markets, particularly the so-called "third market," where dealers serve banks and pension funds by trading in large blocks of stock listed on the exchanges.

The New York and American Stock exchanges and Securities Industry Association, by contrast, prefer a market operating through market-making specialists only.

The government says dealers should compete directly to offer potentially better prices and to provide the liquidity to absorb large blocks. The big exchanges, however, say the inclusion of dealers would destroy the auction market and turn brokerage houses into dealer firms, thereby creating a conflict of interest as one firm serves both as broker-agent and buyer-seller.

James Needham, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, wants the whole network to adopt the exchange's rule prohibiting market-making specialists, which set prices, from dealing directly with institutions, as dealers do.

IMPLEMENTATION: The Securities and Exchange Commission says the first step toward a central market is a composite tape to disclose all transactions. By showing discrepancies in prices in various markets, "the implementation would necessarily precipitate some restructuring of the way securities are traded today," the SEC claims.

The Big Board wants equal regulations and standards established before the tape begins operation, however. And the SIA feels that central administrative facilities are essential before any trading can be conducted over the network.

As conceived now the composite tape would reveal the price, quantity and location of all trades. Those who feel the system would create chaos if implemented, because of the price differences, say the SEC is using the tape principally as a threat to get the industry in line. Denying this, the SEC's central market architect, John Liffitt, says, "All it will do is disclose what already takes place."

OPERATION: Who will run and pay for the national communications network is still in question. Some feel that the present Amex and NYSE could together handle the reporting of trades, while the NASDAQ system now in use in the over-the-counter market could provide a means of reporting bid and asked quotations.

The Big Board and Amex would like their present joint automation venture to run the total network, while the government, particularly Congress, is for a neutral or quasi-governmental body.

As to the cost of the communications network, estimates run anywhere from $50 million to $150 million depending on whom you talk to and whether they like the government's approach. "The cost will be astronomical and it's being forced down our throats," said Virgil Sherrill of Shields & Co., head of the SIA's central market committee.

LISTING: Presently stocks on many companies are listed on exchanges, while the securities of thousands more remain unlisted and are traded only in the over-the-counter market. And some of the listed stocks also are traded away from the exchanges in the "third market."

believe "publicly owned companies should have the option of choosing where to trade their securities," according to Sherrill. The government and the SEC would permit trading wherever competitive reasons make it profitable for the specialist or dealer to handle a given stock.

FIXED RATES: Nearly 200 years ago the New York Stock Exchange began to set the commissions that member firms could charge investors. This fall the SEC asserted its insistence on an end to all fixed rates by April 30, 1975.

Though the SEC decision has recently been termed a "fait accompli" by the Big Board's Needham, there is still much controversy on Wall Street over abolition of fixed rates, with some saying the decision may yet be reversed.

A House committee which studied the industry concluded that "the resolution of the commission rate issue is the key to resolving most of the major questions concerning the shape of our nation's securities markets."

In a recent report to directors, the Big Board's staff said fixed rates are necessary because without them the auction market would be undermined. Only the large brokerage firms would survive, the staff argued, and they would find it economically advantageous to withdraw from the NYSE and other exchanges. The core of this argument, the staff said, is that "open competition amongst a multiplicity of brokerage firms could not be sustained."

Those who favor competitive rates say fixed rates breed inefficiency and distortion. They contend that fixed rates and the exchanges' steps to safeguard them encourage an unhealthy exclusivity on Wall Street.

VETERAN'S

OF PETTIS COUNTY, MISSOURI,
THE STATE OF MISSOURI, AND ACROSS THE NATION

INVITE YOU...

TO HELP US OBSERVE A VERY SPECIAL DATE.

We also take this opportunity to publicly thank Missouri Governor Christopher "Kit" Bond, the Missouri State Legislature, and all citizens who fought for the return of Veteran's Day to Nov. 11th in Mo. — The newly signed bill takes effect this year.

A SALUTE TO THOSE SOLDIERS —LIVING AND DEAD

WITH DEEPEST REGRET, the veterans organizations of Pettis County, Missouri, felt it best to hold their veteran's memorial services and parade, this year, on November 10th — instead of having the parade and services on the original Armistice Day of November 11th. This is due to the fact that, this year, November 11th falls on a Sunday and that necessary parade personnel and equipment would be much more readily available on a Saturday. Therefore, all local observances, this year, will be held on Saturday, November 10th.

WE HAVE A LOT TO BE THANKFUL FOR THIS YEAR. Our nation's longest and most costly war in Indo-China and Vietnam was brought to an end. Our country's soldiers, for the most part, have come back home to their families and loved ones. And, what's more, our military prisoners of war have been released and returned to their homeland that they gave so much of themselves for.

DON'T WE OWE THESE AMERICAN VETERANS SOMETHING? Shouldn't we all get out and do our part to show them that we, as veterans ourselves, or as citizens of these great United States of America, sincerely appreciate their efforts to make and help keep this country — the land of the "free" and the home of the "brave."

WE NEED MORE SIGNS OF OPEN PATRIOTISM AND TOTAL AMERICANISM TODAY. If you believe in America and in what it stands for, you can do your part too. Get out on the sidewalks of Sedalia and support your local veteran organizations this Saturday. Honor them all with your presence on this day before the 55th Anniversary of the original Armistice Day.

★ PLEASE FLY YOUR U.S. FLAG ON YOUR HOME OR BUSINESS THIS WEEKEND

- Let that flag also present itself as a special or personal welcome to both local Pettis County Veterans and to those visiting our city.
- MAKE THEM FEEL WELCOME!
